

Delegate Favorite Is Nixon

Running Mate Preference Is Reagan

NEW YORK (AP)—Richard M. Nixon has topped an Associated Press poll of delegates to the 1964 Republican National Convention as their favorite for the presidential nomination next year, and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan emerged as an overwhelming choice to be the vice presidential nominee.

A majority of those participating in the survey said they favor a Nixon-Reagan ticket.

However, a combination of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Reagan received a substantial number of votes and ran second as the strongest potential GOP team.

Reagan received support, mostly for the vice presidential nomination, in all 50 states.

Associated Press bureaus submitted questionnaires to the 1964 delegates in the nationwide poll. The response was slightly more than 44 per cent.

Of those replying, more than 42 per cent said they expect to be delegates again in 1968.

The principal questions and results were:

Whom do you favor for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination?

Nixon—46 per cent
Rockefeller—20
Reagan—19
Gov. George Romney of Michigan—7

Others—8
Whom would you name as the strongest candidate?

Nixon—45 per cent
Rockefeller—24
Reagan—22
Romney—6
Others—3

What combination would constitute the strongest ticket?

Nixon-Reagan—40 per cent
Rockefeller-Reagan—29

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois received 57 votes for the vice presidential nomination, teamed with Nixon, Reagan or Rockefeller.

Others named for second place on the ticket, with their votes, were Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio, 16, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, 10, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, 8, Sen. Thurston Morton of Kentucky, 6, and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, 5.

The results of the survey tally in some respects with an Associated Press poll of state chairmen and members of the GOP National Committee, taken last October. But there were also significant differences.

In both polls, Nixon ran first as the favorite for the nomination, but he received fewer votes in answers to the question as to the "strongest candidate."

In the October survey, Romney ran second, ahead of Rockefeller, as the GOP leaders' choice whereas he was a poor (See DELEGATE, Page 4.)

State GOP Is Divided On Choice

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Missouri's Republicans seem sharply divided over their choice for the 1968 presidential nominee.

At the 1964 GOP convention in San Francisco, Missouri went for Barry Goldwater 23-1. No such unanimity is apparent now.

In an Associated Press questionnaire answered by 23 of the 1964 delegates or alternates, there were almost as many different opinions as there are candidates or potential candidates.

Asked for their personal choices, 12 chose Nixon, 2 Nixon or Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, 2 Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, while Nixon or Gov. George Romney of Michigan, Reagan and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller got one each.

A few who chose Nixon said they didn't think he could beat President Johnson.

On the other hand, four who were undecided or said it was too early to judge, said the woods are full of good Republican candidates and any of them could win against the President.

"Whoever is nominated will defeat President Johnson," said Miss Hazel Palmer, 901 South Vermont, Sedalia, former GOP nominee for United States senator.

Or as William G. Buffe, former Jackson County Kansas City GOP chairman, put it: "I think Nixon or Romney are the best qualified. If things continue like they are now, I don't believe Johnson can get out of the box he's in in Vietnam."

Concern On Gold Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Johnson Administration is counting on higher taxes, expanded exports, more foreign visitors to the United States and belt tightening by American businessmen to hold in check an expanding dollar drain.

In reporting the fifth straight quarterly rise in the balance of payments deficit, the government also announced Thursday stricter guidelines for U.S. businessmen to follow during 1968 in stemming the flow of dollars overseas.

The deficit in balance of payments increased to $670 million during the third quarter—the highest in 2½ years—and if the trend continues the deficit will exceed $2 billion during 1967 for the first time in three years.

Total deficit for the first nine months of the year was $1.75 billion compared with a $1.35 billion average in each of the last two years over-all.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said the administration is now drafting "selective measures" to encourage U.S. industry to cultivate foreign markets more aggressively. He noted a White House announcement of a government-industry task force to recommend steps to increase foreign travel to the United States.

Both these measures are designed to lessen the drain which occurs when Americans spend more money overseas than foreigners spend in this country. Each outgoing dollar represents a potential drain on U.S. gold stocks.

Fowler declined at a news conference to spell out the export promotion measures until more details are drafted.

Bars To Open Election Day

The Sedalia police department has received several inquiries in the last few days concerning whether the bars will be open on election day next Tuesday.

Usually the bars remain closed during the time when the polls are open.

But, according to Clyde Swafford, an agent with the Missouri Department of Liquor Control, the bars will be open during the normal hours Tuesday because there are no public officials on the ballot.

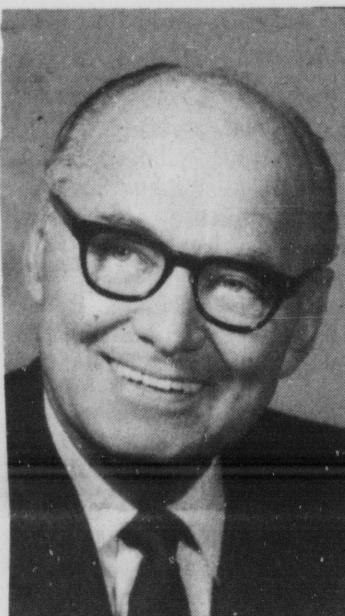

The election Tuesday is entirely for bonds for the Rival expansion program.

Why I Will Vote YES

C. W. Mathieson, executive vice-president and treasurer of Town and Country Shoe Co., Inc., gives his views on the Rival Manufacturing Co. bonds to be voted on Nov. 21:

"I favor the industrial bond issue for Rival Manufacturing Co. because of the improved local conditions that can result from it. Previous studies have shown that an increase in employees by a plant can mean an increase in demand for retail stores, local products and personal income as well as bank deposits.

"The bond issue will allow the company to direct its working capital into machinery, raw materials and labor, rather than freezing it in brick and mortar. The end result spells a bigger payroll for the company and more spending power in the community. In communities where firms have hired about 300 new employees, figures show that more households were created and with them came a larger demand for local goods."

Capital News

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's health, his doctor reports, is excellent.

Adm. George G. Borkley, the White House physician who attends the chief executive, also said "the President's basic health has been excellent throughout the past four years."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three sergeants, recently released by the Viet Cong, are in "good spirits," have been visited by their families.

M. Sgt. Edward R. Johnson of Seaside, Calif., is suffering from chronic dysentery and malnutrition and remains "essentially unchanged" but without fever or acute distress, at Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital, the Army said.

The other two released soldiers, M. Sgt. Daniel L. Pitzer Jr. of Spring Lake, N.C., and S. Sgt. James E. Jackson Jr. of Talcott, W.Va., are undergoing checkups at an Army hospital at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

No Increase Foreseen In U.S. Troop Level

Have Authorization For 525,000 Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today his military commander in Vietnam "anticipates no increase" in the level of 525,000 troops already authorized for U.S. forces there.

Johnson's brief response to a news conference question did not touch on reports from other sources that Gen. William C. Westmoreland, although not seeking more troops, wants earlier deployment of those already authorized.

Johnson's reply did indicate that, barring a radical change in the war, the troop buildup is now leveling off. Administration officials have been saying this privately in recent days.

Johnson turned the conference into an ad lib address to the American people on Vietnam.

Removing his glasses and stepping away from the podium which held his notes, Johnson spoke for more than five minutes on the central issue of U.S. politics—the Vietnam war.

Standing before newsmen in the White House East Room, Johnson was on the dramatic side, gesturing more than usual, clapping his hands for emphasis, and bobbing his head.

Smilingly, Johnson said he will cross when he comes to it the bridge of decision on running again for the presidency. He had been asked about surveys indicating he might be in trouble on Vietnam.

Anyone who believes that Uncle Sam, whoever is president, is going to pull out of Vietnam, is making a serious mistake, the President said.

If Ho Chi Minh has any doubts about it, "I want to disillusion him this morning," Johnson said. "We're going to keep our commitments."

Johnson was asked his assessment of the situation in Vietnam after talking with Gen. Westmoreland and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

"I think every American heart should swell with pride" at what U.S. forces are doing in Vietnam, he said.

The American people want wars and other contests to be decided quickly, he said, adding "that's not the kind of war we're fighting in Vietnam."

Raising his hands, he noted that the war is proceeding on a rising curve. "We're inflicting greater losses than we're taking," he said.

Johnson said "I think there's always been confusions, frustrations and differences of opinion" when there is a war.

It has been true since the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, and subsequent wars, Johnson said.

There were people in the White House urging Lincoln to make a deal with the Confederacy when word came of the Union victory, he said.

Johnson was asked about the economic situation.

"We want very badly to have a tax bill just as quickly as we (See FORESEEN, Page 4.)

Supply Effort By Reds

SAIGON (AP)—With the onset of the dry season in South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese are making a maximum effort to send supply-laden trucks down the Ho Chi Minh trail to their troops in the central highlands and elsewhere.

Intelligence reports tell of hundreds of trucks loaded with ammunition and foodstuffs moving along the trail's jungle back roads in the Red-held section of eastern Laos in the past two weeks.

To counter this movement, American pilots are stepping up their bombing of the trail. There has been at least one unannounced B52 raid on this major infiltration route.

The trail actually is a network of jungle highways and foliage-covered dirt roads.

The increased truck infiltration began about two weeks ago as the eastern part of Laos and the central highlands of South Vietnam began drying out, while monsoon storms moved North.

The trail starts at the Mu Gia Pass in North Vietnam and works its way south through Laos and parts of Cambodia. It branches at a dozen or more places eastward into South Vietnam.

U.S. officials generally refuse to talk about operations in Laos because of the country's declared neutrality.

Councilman Is Killed

FULTON, Mo. (AP)—A Jefferson City councilman, Francis Van Loo, was killed in a hunting accident Thursday about 11 miles south of Fulton, coroner Denzil Browning said.

The coroner said it happened this way:

Van Loo and Dr. Leon Taylor, Jefferson City physician, were hunting quail with bird dogs along a fence row. The men were about 100 yards apart when the dogs stopped on point across the fence near Van Loo. He called to Taylor, who came running.

About 20 feet from Van Loo, Taylor tripped in tangled brush and fell. His shotgun fired and the charge hit Van Loo at the base of the skull.

Only about a month ago another Jefferson City councilman, Montie Wilcoxson, was killed in a highway accident.

Seize a Hill From Enemy

SAIGON (AP)—American troops wrested two strategic hills from North Vietnamese regulars in the battle of Dak To today.

Driving through a blaze of enemy machine-gun and small-arms fire, men of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division seized the crest of Hill 1338 overlooking the allied holdings at Dak To, in the central highlands 270 miles north of Saigon.

Troopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade took over Hill 889, about 10 miles southwest of Dak To, and captured an anti-aircraft gun the enemy had sought to defend.

The loss of Hill 1338, named for its height in meters, deprived the North Vietnamese of an excellent position for deployment of rockets and artillery.

AP Correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the battle scene that soldiers of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division "occupied the topmost point of the hill around 5 p.m. (4 a.m. EST) after some of the bloodiest fighting" in the two weeks of heavy combat in the area close to the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

The air war against North Vietnam also intensified as, for the second straight day, another target came off the Pentagon's off-limits list. U.S. Air Force pilots made the first attack of the war on a secondary airfield one mile south of the center of Hanoi and reported they cut the runway and damaged buildings.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported from Hanoi that several U.S. bombs exploded in the center of the North Vietnamese capital, one of them in the diplomatic quarter.

Arnett said the 4th Division troops took Hill 1338 after day-long fighting against an enemy battalion in bunkers on the crest of the hill.

The hill, four miles south of the Dak To airstrip is the highest point of ground in the area, overlooking all U.S. and South Vietnamese installations in the valley and a potential site for artillery emplacements to menace allied units below.

Arnett reported U.S. commanders suspected the North Vietnamese intended to deploy a rocket regiment along the crest of the hill, and the U.S. assault was ordered to thwart any such move.

A complete casualty report was not yet available, but initial field reports said seven Americans were killed and 14 were wounded in the early stages of the battle.

Enemy casualties were not known.

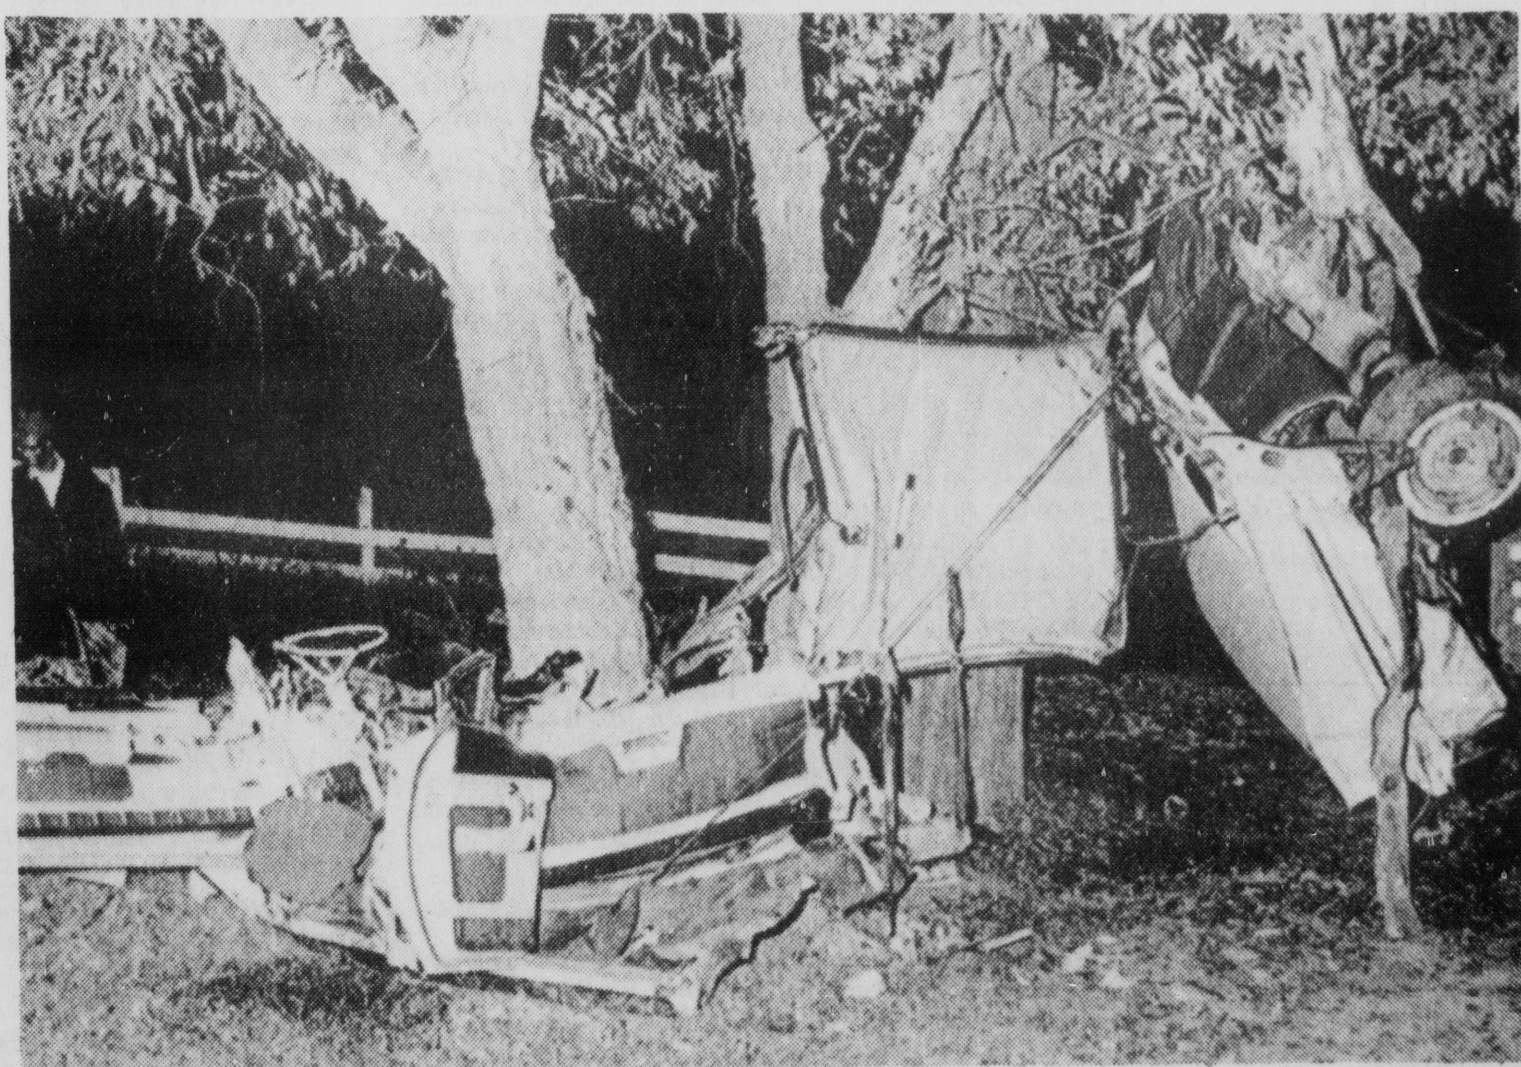

The fighting in the jungled central highlands around the Dak To valley was the heaviest since last Saturday in the two-week campaign that has pitted 10,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen against an estimated 6,000 to 8,000 North Vietnamese troops.

As men of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division battled for control of Hill 1338 overlooking the Dak To valley from the south, South Vietnamese forces fought for another hill north of the U.S. base camp and air strip 20 miles from the juncture of the Laotian and Cambodian borders.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said 17 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the fight.

The Pastor's Comment

By Cleo C. Gray, minister
East Broadway Christian Church

Not many days ago I heard a young man say, as he spoke to a large audience, "There are many things that go on in our nation that we are not proud of, but it is still the greatest nation in the world." I am sure that most of us would agree with the young man. We the people of America have been blessed beyond our fondest dreams and back of all these blessings we must admit is a great and good God.

Religion has always played a major part in the life of people and nations. History and the Bible both give us proof of this.

Abraham Lincoln once said to the people of his day, "Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation, so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure." I wonder if this might not be a testing time for America? In a land of plenty and prosperity we have trouble on every hand, there are fears, disturbances, worries and anxieties on every hand. In our modern life we stand in need.

Our greatest need is religion, I am referring to Christianity. We have church buildings, meetings, singing, preaching, and prayers, but too often there is a shortage of the Spirit of the living God. We have a form but are lacking in fervor. The Apostle Paul warns us of this, Second Timothy 3:5. Having a form of godliness, but denying the power, thereof. In the church today we need a return to the "old paths."

A break-down in the home is effecting our modern life. The home is the first God given institution. It is in the home that lasting imprints are made upon the lives of children. The home that pleases God and makes a strong nation is one with respect to parents, love for Christ, reverence to God and a place where the Bible is read and studied.

In every walk of life from the home to the White House, we need God fearing, Christ centered lives. Psalms 33:12. Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord. Proverbs 14:34. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.

God has not forgotten us. He has the answer to our ills of today. Second Chronicles 7:14. If my people which are called by my name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land. Many parents have said, "I want my children to have things better than I have had." If every American would memorize and obey Second Chronicles 7:14, our children would have things better, not only in this life but that life that is yet to come.

response for stewardship for the year 1968.

Sunday at the Shrine of Jesus Home Chapel, 208 West 17th, the Rev. Doyle Ross Mabry will deliver a message entitled "I Will Never Leave You Or Forsake You," at the 9 a.m. service.

"With My Whole Mind, Heart, and Soul, I believe in God, I Love His Life In Me," will be the topic in the Candlelight Circle of Prayer meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

There will be a special Thanksgiving day service beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday, and there will also be a special Bible Truth Study at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

"Prayer Can And Does Change Things," will be stressed Sunday at Our Savior Lutheran Church when Pastor James Kalthoff delivers a message entitled "Mountains To Move." Holy Communion will also be celebrated. Members may register by calling the parsonage Saturday afternoon.

The Walther League Zone banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the R-1 school in Cole Camp.

A Catholic Catechism Begins to Stir Trouble

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's being praised, argued about, banned, boosted and broadly bought. That's the treatment accorded a recently issued Catholic book, "A New Catechism," which puts some old doctrines in new perspective.

Out for 10 days, it's stirring up assorted reverberations. Some Catholic authorities object to it; others applaud it, and it's being variously handled by church outlets.

May See Increase In Funds

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Some quietly enacted legislation and an unpublicized meeting of financiers here this week may lead to a huge increase in the amount of funds available to small but growing businesses.

The actions are bound to have a lasting and profound effect on the American economy.

For one thing, they are expected to be especially meaningful in financing growing companies through their critical adolescence, when they are still privately owned but are attempting to attract public investment in their shares.

The legislation and the meeting have come also at a critical time for some small businesses which, without proper funding in these times of recurring tight money, have been selling out to larger corporations.

The legislation, signed Oct. 11 by President Johnson, redesigns the nation's Small Business Investment Companies, which are independently owned financiers licensed by the federal government.

The job of these SBICs is to supply venture capital to small companies, which badly need it, greatly deserve it, but often cannot get it. Because they are licensed, regulated, take high risks and perform a needed function, the SBICs may borrow from the government some of this venture capital.

The October legislation has now greatly increased the amount SBICs may borrow for such reinvesting. For example, an SBIC with $4 million in private capital could borrow only $3.05 million under the old law, but $10 million under the new.

In addition, the government has made it much easier for the SBICs to attract money from other private sources by agreeing to subordinate its loans, that is, take second claim on assets.

Because they have assurance of first claim to repayment, private lenders are expected to be far more willing now to invest their money in SBICs. And as the SBICs grow, of course, the more they can lend to small businesses.

Plan Plush New Home For the Queen Mary

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The liner Queen Mary, one of man's classiest creations, takes up residence Dec. 9 in a town whose main distinction once was its abundance of migrants from the Corn Belt.

But things have changed in this now-swinging city and the Queen's new home will be in a setting perhaps unrivaled in major world ports:

A curving strand studded with striking high-rise apartment and office buildings, a spanking new sports arena, a convention center, a $20-million airport-size pier to be anchored by a new oceanographic center; a $130-million commercial harbor, a new $25-million, 5,000-boat marina designed to make Long Beach the "Riviera of the West."

Just offshore are stunningly landscaped artificial islands that cunningly conceal wells that tap the stuff that made it all possible: oil.

An ocean of it—estimated at two billion barrels.

Long Beach already has reaped $250 million from it, and expects at least that much more, with the same strings attached: It all must be spent for harbor development.

No wonder, then, that this community of 400,000 was able to outbid New York City and pick up the Queen Mary for $3,444,000 as its newest port ornament. It could have gone higher without paining its pocket book, in fact it plans to invest another $2.5 million fitting her out as a hotel and museum.

Long Beach, with all that loot pouring in, is a city unique in waterfront development. Instead of scratching for money, its problem is devising sound ways to spend it.

What's it like to sit atop a sea of black gold?

Perilous, among other things. Withdrawing so much oil over the years caused the city to sink, so drastically that parts of it are below the level of the Pacific Ocean, which must be restrained by dikes.

But engineers have found a way to pump the oil and stay stable, too—by pumping some of those Pacific waters deep into the oil sands. This stops the subsidence, and even has increased the oil recovery.

Oil-rich and oil-happy though it may be, Long Beach has done little to advertise its buried assets. To the contrary, professional tub-thumpers seldom mention oil, although revenue from it helps keep the city tax rate comfortably low. Instead, they emphasize the miles of beaches maintained with oil revenue, fishing and pleasure boating facilities built with oil money, and a resort atmosphere.

May Build Power Line Across River

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department today authorized the Sho - Me Power Corp. to build a 161,000 volt electric transmission line across the Ozark Nation Riverway in Missouri.

The department specified conditions to minimize the power line's interference with scenic values and the company agreed.

Assistant Secretary Kenneth Holm said the decision to grant a 3500-foot crossing was made only after it was found that the power line was absolutely necessary and that alternate routes for it would have caused even more scenic damage.

As authorized, the line is to cross the riverway at the Current river, one mile downstream from Round Springs in south-central Missouri.

It will run 115 miles from Norfolk Dam, in Arkansas, to the Missouri lead mining region.

Among the conditions, the department required there be no bulldozing of the right-of-way and no permanent access or maintenance roads, and that the towers be so constructed as to be unobtrusive.

It was also agreed that the line would be either removed or put underground in twenty five years.

Steal Ring, Leave Victim With a Kiss

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two masked men raided the penthouse apartment of wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Carling L. Dinkler today, took a 22-carat diamond ring valued at $110,000, and left Mrs. Dinkler with a kiss on the cheek.

Police said the robbery took place at the plush Palm Bay Yacht Club, which Mrs. Dinkler helped build in 1965 as a place where "the potentially rich young people can enjoy themselves while they're making it."

Returning to the eighth-floor apartment after a United Fund dinner at the club, Dinkler walked into the bedroom and found two men waiting. He said each carried an automatic pistol with silencer.

"We're being held up honey," the multi-millionaire owner of hotel chains called out to his wife, who had gone into the kitchen.

After binding the couple with tape, the men took the pear-shaped diamond from Mrs. Dinkler's finger, found two emeralds while ransacking the apartment, and apparently left down an interior fire escape.

Just before leaving, the men taped the mouths of their victims and one of them leaned over and kissed Mrs. Dinkler's cheek.

Drug Costs Not Included In Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has killed a plan to include the cost of prescription drugs in medicare insurance coverage for nearly 18 million elderly Americans.

The vote Thursday was 37 to 33 to uphold Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen's move to table an amendment to the Social Security bill offered by Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M.

Dirksen, saying the plan would cost $690 million in the first year, contended the federal government couldn't afford the $345 million which would be its share. Montoya insisted the cost would be $220 million equally shared by medicare enrollees and the government.

Montoya said this would mean only 50 cents extra a month in premiums for each enrollee. The monthly fee now is $3 but indications are it will go up to $4 next year.

Montoya said his plan would require government testing of drugs and provide reimbursement only for the lowest cost drug appropriate for a particular ailment.

can get it," he said, adding that there is no indication that the House Ways and Means Committee plans to report one this year.

One of his administration's failures, he said, has been the inability to convince Congress of the need for a new tax bill.

"I think that's one of the great mistakes the Congress will make," he said, saying that Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, "will live to rue the day" because of the inflation and federal deficit, in the event no tax increase is approved.

He said the people have supported tax increases during other wars. Congress, he said, has cut only $1 billion from federal spending but is cutting $2 billion in revenues.

He said he knows tax increases don't help in political polls, but "I think we can do it. I think we should do it."

"We have failed up until now to convince them," he said, but he added he thinks eventually Congress will do it.

Johnson was asked about the impact of foreign aid cuts.

He said that when the richest nation on earth is enjoying great prosperity and Congress cuts what he called a very low aid request, "I think it's a mistake, I think it's a serious mistake."

Johnson said he knows it's popular to cut foreign aid but that when trouble develops "and we have to go in, we'll spend much more than if we had taken an ounce of prevention."

Huge Waste In Defense Purchasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department and a major aviation contractor agree with the government's financial watchdog agency that at least $12.5 million was wasted in ground support equipment for the F4 Phantom II plane.

The Defense Department said Thursday it will act to curb the waste.

The General Accounting Office said its study of $265 million in defense contracts with the McDonnell Douglas Corp. of St. Louis found:

—Screwdrivers costing $26 each went unused in favor of ones costing 20 cents each. A total of 109 of the expensive ones were bought for $2,840.

—Cleaning equipment bought at a cost of $225,000 was found to be unusable much of the time.

McDonnell concurred with the Defense Department that there had been waste.

The GAO, in a report to Congress, also said the Air Force and Navy should have better coordinated their needs and should have bought common equipment.

yield the right of way, found innocent and dismissed.

Long Warns On Abuses By the IRS

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., warned public accountants Thursday night to guard against what he called abusive practices of the Internal Revenue Service.

He said the IRS "has a way of fuzzing up the difference between civil and criminal tax cases."

Long spoke to the 14th annual conference of the Public Accountants Association of Missouri.

Long reported he and Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., are sponsoring a bill to create a system of 20 ombudsmen to help protect small taxpayers from abuse and mistreatment of IRS agents.

In cases involving less than $2,500, they could go before a small tax division within the U. S. Tax Court to present their grievances.

A new freedom of information law which he sponsored also should help accountants and taxpayers, he said, and he intends to watch pending cases to "close up every loophole" in the law.

"I intend to hold public hearings," he promised, "on every major abuse of this law by a federal agency."

fourth in the voting by the former convention delegates.

A Rockefeller-Reagan combination was voted the strongest team in the earlier poll, with a Nixon-Reagan ticket well behind.

In the answers to all three questions, Reagan's showing was better in the second poll.

There were numerous comments about Reagan in the former delegates' replies.

"Until recently, and for as long as he's been in public life, I have definitely been committed to Nixon," said Sue Odem, of Savannah, Tenn. "But the more I see of Reagan and study his political views, I'm being drawn to him."

"I favor Reagan," said Al Snipes, former Oklahoma County GOP chairman. "I think he would poll five to 10 million more votes than Nixon, but I think Nixon could beat Johnson, too."

Kiwanians Hear Talk By Coach

Concerning a program to develop University of Missouri basketball teams, Norm Stewart, head coach, told Sedalia Kiwanians at their meeting in Bothwell Hotel Thursday noon that positive efforts are being made to obtain good student-athletes from Missouri schools in order to develop University teams to become competitive.

"We are starting now to win scheduled games and be competitive," Coach Stewart declared, "and we are going to attract more athletes and put ourselves in a more challenging position in basketball contests."

The speaker was introduced by Robert Gardner, program chairman, who had as his guest Jack Baker.

Invocation was by Robert Fritz. Singing was led by Abe Rosenthal with Mrs. Lillian Maynard accompanist. Birthday greetings were extended to William Dugan, Wendell Smith and Henry Keeler.

President James Giokaris reminded members that there would be no regular meeting Thanksgiving Day but that Rotary had extended an invitation to meet with them Monday noon, Nov. 20. However, there will be make-up registration at the hotel desk on Thursday.

Bunker and Westmoreland Report 'Steady Progress'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is engaged in an extraordinary effort this week to persuade as many people as possible the United States is slowly but surely winning the Vietnam war.

This apparently is the primary purpose of his consultations here with his ambassador in Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker, his military commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, and other top officials involved in the Southeast Asian conflict.

And the President provided himself with an opportunity to talk to the people by scheduling a news conference for today—one of the few this year he has opened to live television-radio broadcast.

Bunker is making an unusual number of public appearances—unusual for an ambassador summoned home for White House consultation. Westmoreland has a less heavy schedule but his engagement list could grow.

Bunker's message in public statements and private meetings with congressional groups is that the United States and its allies are making "steady progress" in the war. Westmoreland returned to Washington Wednesday, a few days behind Bunker, declaring: "I have never been more encouraged in my four years at Vietnam."

Bunker sounded his progress theme at a White House news conference Monday after spending 90 minutes with the President. The following morning he was interviewed briefly on a national network and he has agreed to tape a brief interview with another network.

In other major appearances he is scheduled to speak at the Overseas Press Club in New York tonight and to participate with Westmoreland in a nationally broadcast interview program, (NBC's) Meet the Press on Sunday.

The Sunday interview is unusual in bringing together two such men as the ambassador and the general. Furthermore the White House has been considering also scheduling them for a joint appearance before the National Press Club next Tuesday.

Privately, Bunker has met with the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He is reported to have told these groups that progress in the war can be measured by the formation of the new government in Saigon and by the expanding control of the government over the Vietnamese population. He uses the figure of 67 per cent.

Bunker also has told the congressional groups he does not believe any more U.S. troops will be needed in South Vietnam beyond the present authorized limit of 525,000 by mid-1968.

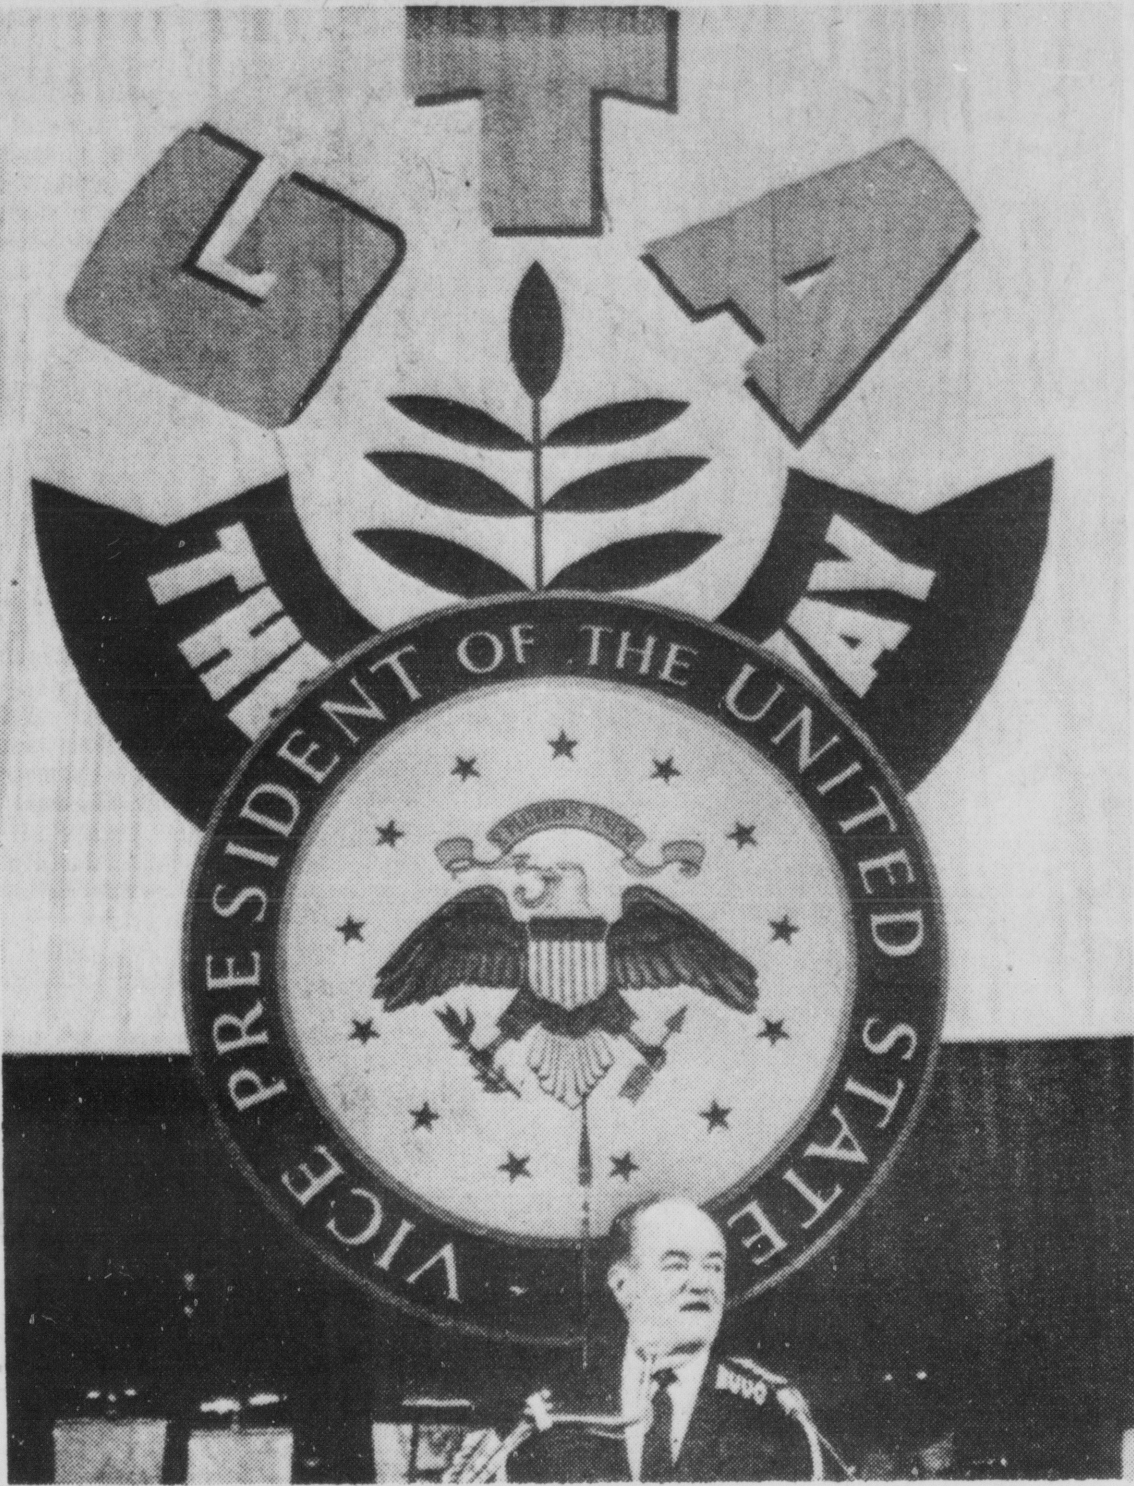

The word inside the government is that President Johnson has "orchestrated" the continuing policy conferences at the White House during the week with the public appearances by Bunker and Westmoreland.

The President himself set the stage with his speeches during a tour of military bases late last week on the occasion of Veterans Day.

Johnson appealed for support for his policy of seeking "limited victory" in Vietnam and said "peace will come more quickly when the enemy of freedom finds no crack in our courage, and no split in our resolve."

Another development apparently designed to set the stage for the Bunker and Westmoreland appearances came with the Saturday release in Saigon of new intelligence estimates of the strength of enemy forces in South Vietnam.

For the first time in almost three years the estimate of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop strength went down radically from 285,000 to 242,000. The drop was explained in Sai-

Addresses Grain Men

Vice President Humphrey spoke before the annual Grain Terminal Association's convention in St. Paul, Minn., Thursday, and said the Johnson administration would do its best "to see that you have a right to bargain." (UPI)

IN THE NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the age of computers it will be more than just a figure of speech when someone says "money talks."

C.W. Ford, president of the Great Western Financial Corp., says the computer industry is on the threshold of a system to provide instantaneous answers on which to base management planning, budgeting and controlling for "next week, next year, even the next five years."

Ford told the U.S. Savings and Loan League convention that the system will be available at a price all savings and loan firms can afford.

gon dispatches partly as a result of new calculations, partly as a result of increased enemy casualties, plus decreased enemy troop replacements.

Whether President Johnson can get his message of "steady progress" toward victory across to the country in the words of Bunker and Westmoreland and through his own statements is questioned here, even by some distressed officials within the administration.

They believe, as the President said last Friday, that dissension within the country encourages the Communists in Vietnam to fight on in the belief the United States' will to win even a limited victory must eventually collapse.

The problem challenging Johnson's leadership is greater than personal popularity; he needs support for policies which can only be carried out with billions of dollars and hundreds of thousands of men in uniform.

Nice Landing On Wrong Air Field

DIXON, Mo. (AP)—An Ozark Air Lines plane carrying 48 passengers made an unscheduled landing Thursday night when the pilot mistook Walgreen Field for the Whiteside County Airport 13 miles west.

The prop jet made an uneventful landing although the 3,100-foot runway is only half the length of the one at the Whiteside County Airport at Rock Falls.

"This incident was strictly pilot error," said Stan Cobane, Ozark office man at Rock Falls. "He sure was embarrassed about the whole thing."

Cobane did not know the pilot's name.

The flight originated in Chicago and was to terminate at Kansas City after stops at Rock Falls and Moline, Ill., Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa, Iowa.

The plane was not flying on instruments, Cobane said, and the two airports have similar headings.

Provision In Aid Bill Is Deleted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has turned back attempts to delete from the foreign aid appropriations bill a provision to penalize have-not nations that use U.S. money to buy sophisticated weaponry.

A 200-190 vote Thursday kept in the money measure language that calls for reducing aid to such foreign nations by the amount they spend on such items as jet fighter planes purchased from other countries.

More attempts to amend the $2.2 billion foreign aid measure were expected today when debate on it resumes.

The bill's money figure represents a cut of about one third in the $3.2 billion foreign aid budget sought by President Johnson.

Samples Of Living Cost Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you're married, have two youngsters and earn around $8,000 a year, Honolulu is not for you. Austin, Tex., is more your speed.

That was the gist of a recent federal report that said the two cities were, respectively, the most expensive and least expensive of 39 U.S. metropolitan areas studied.

A random sampling of 33 items from houses to hamburgers by Associated Press reporters in both cities buttresses the Bureau of Labor Statistics report.

The cost of a new three-bedroom ranch-style house in a good, but not exclusive area, in Honolulu was put at about $27,000. The figure for a similar house in Austin: $22,500.

And in Honolulu most homes are built on leased land. You buy the house but rent the land it sits on.

The annual property tax for the Honolulu house would be $483. In Austin it would be $360.

Rental housing also was found to be more costly in Honolulu, where a two-bedroom apartment in a new apartment house rents for about $150 a month. The comparable Austin figure: $125.

The federal report said that a typical family of four—parents in their late 30s, son 13 and daughter 8—would need $11,190 annually to live moderately in Honolulu, Hawaii's major city. The figure for Austin was approximately $8,000.

Why the big difference?

According to Arthur Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the basic reason is that most items in the family budget must be shipped to Honolulu and these costs push up prices.

Austin is said to be typical of many smaller metropolitan areas in the South where housing and transportation costs are lower.

Weekend Deer Hunts This Year

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's deer hunters will get everything but trading stamps during the gun season this year.

They'll get to hunt on two weekends, have the equivalent of two opening days and get a day more of hunting than they did a year ago.

The gun season is broken into two installments this year with a four-day segment opening at 6:30 a.m. Saturday. The second segment runs from Dec. 1 through Dec. 3.

That means the first portion will run from Saturday through Wednesday and the second portion from a Friday through Sunday.

During the first four days only bucks will be legal in 51 counties with bucks, does and fawns legal in the other 63 counties. In the three days of the second portion of the hunt only bucks will be legal throughout the state.

The outlook is good for a normal increase in the number of hunters and the number of successes.

Last year in a seven day gun season an estimated 130,640 hunters killed about 28,000 deer. Archers killed 458 deer during their special bow and arrow season that ran from Oct. 1 through Dec. 15.

In a like archery season the so far — through last Sunday—has reached 273.

This year, too, there was the special primitive weapons deer hunt in the Caney Mountain refuge of Ozark County from Oct. 21 through Oct. 29. Hunters armed with muzzle-loading rifles, longbows or crossbows registered a total kill of 19 deer.

This Saturday and Sunday there will be special controlled hunts in four wildlife refuges—Peck Ranch in Carter County, Indian Trail in Dent County, Deer Run in Reynolds County and Mincy in Taney County. Reservations were drawn early so the number of hunters could be controlled. Three hundred will be allowed at Peck Ranch.

RECORD ENROLLMENT
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton Theological Seminary opened its 1967-68 academic year with an enrollment of more than 600 students, the largest in the 156-year history of the Presbyterian institution.

160 each at Indian Trail and Deer Run and 100 at Mincy.

Hunting hours during the statewide gun season will run from 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Kills in any deer counties during the first four days of the season must be taken to a checking station within 24 hours. Kills in bucks only counties during the first portion of the hunt and in all counties during the second portion do not have to be checked.

These are the bucks only counties during the first four days of the gun season this year:

Adair, Andrew, Atchison, Audrain, Barton, Buchanan, Caldwell, Carroll, Cass, Chariton, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Dade, Daviess, DeKalb, Dunklin, Gentry, Greene, Grundy, Harrison, Holt, Howard, Jackson, Jasper, Knox, Lafayette, Lawrence, Lewis, Linn, Livingston, Macon, Marion, Mercer, Mississippi, Monroe, New Madrid, Nodaway, Pemiscott, Pettis, Platte, Putnam, Ralls, Randolph, Ray, Schuyler, Scotland, Scott, Shelby, Sullivan and Worth.

They Call It Protection

In this computerized age we are away out in left field when it comes to understanding electronics which, as currently commented on in this column, relates to cable television and channel jumping.

We had a discussion with an expert about Channel 8, Columbia, making its own station identification announcements on Channel 4 on Sedalia's Cablevision.

As near as our thick head can come to understanding this procedure, the Federal Communication Commission has regulations permitting Channel 8 to identify its station as Channel 8 on Channel 4 or some other station where the program is identical.

The effect is that the Columbia station is supposed thereby to claim additional coverage for its commercial advertisers in an established circular zone which embraces Sedalia, whereas Channel 4 is in another circular zone which on paper does not come out as far as Sedalia, but definitely does so on the air waves which are no respecters of arbitrary ink lines on parchment.

What we can't get through our noodle is if Channel 8 is already covering Sedalia on Cablevision what additional coverage is it getting by breaking in on Channel 4? Cablevision is for Sedalia and doesn't reach out to Dresden, Camp Branch or Spring Fork.

Temporarily we are going to leave it to

Claude Knight of the Knight Television Sales and Service to explain it his way in a Letter to the Editor on this page today. He emphasizes that the FCC regulations are a protection for which we can thank our lucky stars.

The only stars we have been seeing lately, except after nightfall, are the mental ones going into celestial orbit as a result of subscriber complaints about this fidgety business of channel jumping and so-called interference.

Automation and poor timing may have something to do with the disturbance locally of Channel 4 (WDAF-TV, Kansas City.) We appreciate Claude's interest in the matter and hope we hear from the Channel 8 management in reply to our initial editorial Wednesday. Being closer to the subject of FCC regulations they can no doubt clear up any misunderstanding which probably would not have resulted if an announcement had been made in advance to Sedalia Cablevision subscribers concerning what Channel 8 proposed to demand of Sedalia Cablevision.

The TV subject is one which could evolve into serialization if anyone cares to throw in his two-bits worth of comment. This could become a more cheerful alternative to daily news about the doves and the hawks, sur tax and foreign aid, poverty and protest parades.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Test for Pan American Progress

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Today the Pan American Union, now better known as the Organization of American States, elects the man who will pilot it for the next ten years. This is the most important international job in the western hemisphere, comparable to U Thant's job as Secretary General of the United Nations.

Unfortunately, the job has been subject to a lot of petty politics in the past. Personalities have been put ahead of public welfare. There has also been suspicion that the United States wanted to dominate the OAS.

This time, however, the 20 Pan American republics have a chance to put one of the top leaders of the hemisphere in the post of Secretary General. He is Galo Plaza, ex-President of Ecuador, and the man who has worked for the United Nations in handling the crisis in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops, the Cyprus crisis over which the Greeks and Turks came close to war, and the Congo crisis when the U.N. sent in a police force. Galo Plaza has also undertaken an important mission to Haiti to try to head off the explosion in that unhappy country certain to come when President Duvalier exits.

Last year, Drew Pearson, who has spent part of his newspaper career specializing in Latin American affairs, flew to Ecuador, talked to ex-President Plaza, urged him to become a candidate for Secretary General of the OAS. Plaza was reluctant. He considered it important to remain in Quito to help restore Ecuadorian democracy and stability.

Returning to Washington, Pearson urged the State Department and other Pan American diplomats to back Galo Plaza as the best man to pilot the OAS. Ambassador Sol Linowitz, the dynamic Xerox executive whom LBJ persuaded to become U. S. Ambassador to the OAS, readily concurred. So did some other diplomats, though many are pledged to vote for their own favorite son on the first ballot.

Plaza's chief handicap is that he was born in New York and is considered the State Department's candidate. What most people don't know is that it is an enterprising American newspaperman, rather than the State Department, who is really promoting him.

The showdown comes today. It will be interesting to see whether personal politics or Pan American progress wins out in steering the future course of the western hemisphere.

—Ex-Bachelor Senator's Wife—

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., is famous for being both a crusader for the consumer and a great persuader. He doesn't orate. But he does persuade his colleagues to line up behind his bills. His displeasure with a commerce committee vote on a smoking measure caused winning opponents to withdraw and compromise on his terms. Opponents of auto safety also withdrew before his mingled persuasion and wrath.

Long a bachelor, Magnuson finally persuaded beautiful Jermaine Peralta to love, honor and obey him "until death do us part."

Recently the senator and his lady were driving; she, happily smoking a cigarette; he, lecturing her on the evils thereof.

"Didn't you pay any attention to our hearings?" asked the senator from Washington. "Surely you know how hazardous smoking is."

Jermaine turned to her lord and master, giving him a full look from under deer-fringed eyelashes.

"Why don't you fasten your seat belt?" she asked. Magnuson did.

—Knocking Out China?—

It probably won't be admitted officially, but the joint chiefs have just completed a new set of plans for knocking out the Chinese nuclear works located deep in the interior. These are strictly contingency plans, of course, which would not be used unless the Chinese attacked the United States first.

The plans were formulated after it became known last summer that China had developed limited missiles. In September, therefore, high-ranking officers from the joint chiefs' technical staff traveled to the Far East on a secret mission to assemble the latest intelligence on China's nuclear complex and its vulnerability. From this information, the plans for attack have now been updated.

It is no particular secret that China could be easily knocked out of the nuclear race in case of open warfare between the two countries. No doubt this has had a powerful restraining influence upon Red Chinese leaders. They have issued public taunts that Uncle Sam is a paper tiger, but nevertheless have taken care not to twist the tiger's tail.

However, the behavior of Mao Tse-Tung is unpredictable. He appears to have turned China at times into a massive lunatic asylum which has caused Pentagon planners to wonder whether the Chinese might take a foolish, suicidal, military gamble.

As a result, Secretary of Defense McNamara ordered construction of a limited anti-ballistic missiles system, which could knock down the intercontinental missiles the Chinese are expected to develop in the 1970s. In addition the joint chiefs prepared plans for a possible, irrational Chinese move which might come before the 1970s.

Most authorities don't expect such a move. But the Pentagon's policy is to hope for the best and prepare for the worst.

CLAUDE KNIGHT (1501 South Missouri) —

From the reading of your editorial Nov. 15, I am sure you do not understand the reasons for FCC regulations applying to CATV. Thank your lucky stars for this protection. If it were not for this protection I would, as would any business man in Sedalia, be able to have my normal newspaper ad run in a prime time on channel 4, 5, 9, or any channel I so desire through such a simple process of CATV blanking out network commercials and substituting my commercial.

I might add that without FCC protection CATV could do this at a cost far below local newspaper, radio, or TV advertising.

Even though station breaks and commercials may irritate you and me as the audience, remember these are the things that give us free TV viewing rather than pay TV.

Back Beliefs with Money To Keep Churches Strong

By DAVID POLING

This is budget time in most churches and a good moment to analyze the current financial problems of the religious community. The congregations are few that do not spend anxious months wondering from where the money will come for next year's operation. Religion is big business and the costs, expense and overhead of our churches is no small thing.

Most denominations are caught in a two-way squeeze. In the urban areas, a diocese or presbytery or conference has the maintenance of churches that may be more than a hundred years old. The exterior brick or stone needs repair; the slate roof calls for expert attention and the leathers in the organ may be dried and crumbling. Insurance rates are on a steady climb. The stained glass windows could use some lead and the sexton says he must have that assistant this year or else.

Add to this the increase in assessments for the Home for Senior Citizens and the Neighborhood Youth director, as well as the pay rise for the pastor, and you see the markup of inflation hitting the city church. The despair increases when you realize how many of the old-timers have died this year, people who gave generously and regularly. You get just a whiff of the heavy burden that many of our city congregations must handle every autumn around canvass time.

Sure, some of these big downtown cathedrals have handsome trust funds and blue chip investments. Their altar rail is polished and the soloists paid on time, with vacation. But these are the exceptions and the church has yet to find a large wave of new urban members to bring support and strength for this spiraling financial bind.

Out in the towns and new suburbs, the story is reversed. Here old, small buildings are jammed with new young families. Two and three services a Sunday morning are often the grinding schedule that a pastor must face to handle the requirements of space and time.

Many of these booming churches with sprawling educational plants need additional parking, extra full-time staff and a re-financing on the parish house. The pinch really comes when you ask for reasonable support from the members who are hung up high on monthly house payments, a boy starting college and some teeth-straightening bills for a daughter. The bind is different, the suburbs from the city, but it still hits the church and there aren't enough millionaires to go around.

It's no surprise that some look to the state and federal government for assistance, especially on the parochial school overhead. Many Roman Catholics feel that the state owes an education to all children, so why not spend a little to help these pupils in church schools.

Unfortunately, the Protestant and Jewish community don't see it this way and I doubt if the church-state separation will be bent to accommodate this special Catholic plea.

We're back where we started. If you believe in something, you've got to pay for it.

In "Marshall Miles Teaches Logical Bridge," the author points out that when your opponents reach three no-trump through their own bidding and without competition, a double asks your partner to lead the first suit bid by dummy.

This is an old convention and like most conventions, whether old or new, has almost as many variations as there are expert players.

Marshall teaches the simplest form, which may be stated as follows: "When your opponents reach three no-trump without any competition, a double asks your partner to lead the first suit bid by dummy. It doesn't demand that your partner make this lead. Your partner may have some overpowering reason to lead something else. It also doesn't guarantee that you will beat the contract. It just is a toll that is going to prove valuable in the long run."

Today's hand shows Marshall Miles' first example. East isn't sure that a spade lead will beat three no-trump, but he is pretty sure that without a spade lead South will romp home. He doubles and hopes for the best.

This time it works. West hears the double and opens a spade. East takes five spade tricks and South is down one. If it had turned out that North held five spades instead of four, East's lead directing double would merely have held declarer to nine tricks; but that is the chance that a player who makes this type of double takes. You must use your lead directing doubles with discretion and realize that it is rare indeed that you can be certain that your lead-directing double will succeed, but you should also know that you never get anywhere by just sitting back and waiting for something to happen.

The World Today

Violent Protest On the Increase

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tolerance has a crooked neck. This comes from leaning over backwards not to appear intolerant.

The result is that violent demonstrations are getting more violent.

Freedom of expression, including the right to dissent, is a basic American right. But expressing dissent through violence is not a right. Only the peaceful kind is.

Violent expression is a national disgrace. If permitted to continue, it opens the door to anarchy since it is a defiance of law and order.

But there seems to be a great public reluctance—and particularly on the part of government leadership—to urge and take strong action to prevent mass violence or to crush it fast if it occurs.

Both whites and Negroes have committed historic acts of violence in the past few months, even though for different reasons.

In Detroit last summer Negroes looted and burned but Michigan and national authorities showed great hesitancy to meet the violence with full force fast and crush it.

Then this week in New York where Secretary of State Dean Rusk spoke at a hotel, bands of anti-Vietnam war demonstrators, unable to pierce the police lines set up to protect Rusk, turned the night into a riot.

They pelted policemen, automobiles and buildings with steers' blood and resisted arrest. Forty of them were arrested and a number of persons, including five policemen were injured.

The steers' blood was supposed to symbolize human blood shed in Vietnam. The secretary of state had to slip into the hotel through its garage hours ahead of time to avoid the pickets.

Rusk and President Johnson have to travel under increased security guard and, reportedly, have had to cancel some of their public appearances when they learned thousands of antiwar pickets were waiting for them.

Although Johnson is in the No. 1 position to act and arouse public opinion to act against the increasing irresponsibility and violence he hasn't said much about it.

The roots of the violence probably go back into the 1950s when white liberals journeyed South to help Negroes test the discriminatory racial laws still on the books there.

Those were relatively peaceful expressions of protest and they were effective in arousing the country to the injustices against Negroes. But the idea of protest by direct action, first by peaceful picketing, caught on around the nation.

Bit by bit violence grew out of the demonstrations in schools and cities until some weeks ago a mob protesting the Vietnam war tried to force its way into the Pentagon.

It's a good guess that a number of the pickets—judging from their brainless actions—were mental emotional cases using the war as an excuse, conscious or not, to defy society or wreak vengeance on it.

It is a frightening commentary on the mood of the country that the President and Secretary of State have to travel under heavy guard, sneak in through a garage to make a speech, or call off visits and speeches altogether.

With the violence increasing, it poses an embarrassing question: How can Johnson, if he seeks a second term in the presidency next year, dare to make a speech in public during the campaign?

The No. 1 question is how to stop the violence. If it continues it is not hard to imagine some blood baths ahead as the violent ones among the demonstrators move from steers' blood to bombs and bullets.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Prevention of Stroke Always Best Treatment

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What is the usual cause of strokes? What is the best treatment? How long must the treatment be continued?

A—Strokes may be caused by the breaking loose of a blood clot and its lodgment in the brain, or the rupture of an artery in the brain. The latter is usually brought on by a combination of hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure. In either case, the circulation to a part of the brain is cut off and the part affected ceases to function.

The best treatment is always prevention. But when a stroke has occurred, studies must be made to locate the exact source of the trouble. In some cases, the trouble is in an artery in the neck and is readily accessible to surgical repair. In others, rest and good nursing care must be provided during the acute stage. Following this, every effort should be made to rehabilitate the victim. This is a slow process but, in many cases, it results in an amazing recovery of function.

Q—About two years ago, I had an intracerebral hematoma. My blood pressure is still high. Would diet help to control this condition?

A—For your high blood pressure, a salt-poor diet is recommended. Careful administration of drugs to bring your blood pressure down is also necessary.

Q—Following a slight stroke two years ago, my arms and legs have been weak and I have a speech impairment. I am taking Raudixon and phenobarbital. What would make me feel tired even after a good night's sleep? Would walking help me overcome the weakness?

A—Both of the drugs you are taking cause drowsiness. Furthermore, hardening of the arteries is a common cause of easy fatigability. Walking is excellent exercise at any age and should help to improve your physical fitness provided you do not allow yourself to become overly tired.

Q—What is Mysoline? Could a person who is taking Dilantin and phenobarbital also take Mysoline? Would there be any bad side effects?

A—Primidone (Mysoline) and the other two drugs are anticonvulsants given to prevent epileptic seizures. In persons whose seizures are hard to control, all three may be given. Drowsiness and a skin rash are the side effects most often seen when too large a dosage is given.

Hershey Draft Plan Drawing Heavy Fire

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

The presidents of two Ivy League universities have spoken out against a proposal to strip draft deferment from students who interfere with military recruiting.

And U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas says the author of the proposal, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the Selective Service, is "a law unto himself and responds only to his own conversation."

Fortas spoke Thursday night at Colgate University when asked his opinion of the proposal. He also said Hershey's statement probably did not "have the approval of the executive branch of government."

Earlier, James A. Perkins, president of Cornell University, and Ray L. Heffner, president of Brown University, took issue with the proposal in separate actions.

Perkins urged, in a telephone conversation with Douglas C. Carter, a special assistant to President Johnson, that the White House abolish the Hershey proposal.

Hershey recommended three weeks ago that local draft boards find evidence that students with deferments are interfering with recruiting by U.S. military representatives remove the deferments and make them available for call-up to duty.

Perkins' office said he told the White House: "I would be opposed to this policy if the incident took place off the campus but I am particularly opposed if it involves action on the university campus."

"In this latter case, draft board monitoring of student behavior would destroy the university's power to manage its own affairs and would substitute uninformed outside authority for carefully developed university judicial systems."

His call preceded a demonstration by 40 Cornell students against the appearance by two Marine recruiters on campus but his office said there was no connection between the two.

In Providence, Heffner said he intends to tell Hershey he strongly disagrees with the proposal, considering it possibly illegal and "certainly unwise."

He said students who engage in forms of protest involving physical force or physical obstruction "shall be subject to university discipline."

But he added, the rights of "peaceful assembly, free exchange of ideas and orderly protest are among the basic rights of all members of a university community."

In Geneva, N.Y., Dr. Richard C. DeBold, dean of Hobart College, called upon President Johnson to relieve Hershey of his post.

In a letter to the President he charged the Selective Service director with a "lack of ability to understand the youth in our times."

"Because I feel that our youth is our hope for a better world, I strongly urge that you relieve Hershey of a command for which he is obviously incompetent."

In Washington Thursday, the Selective Service system made public an Oct. 26 letter from Hershey to government appeals agents—who advise draft registrants of their legal rights—to report to draft boards any violations by registrants.

He told the boards the request was made so registrants who have failed to comply with the draft law "may be expeditiously processed by their local board as delinquents and that non-registrants who violate the law may be promptly reported to the Department of Justice for prosecution."

Asst. U.S. Atty. William Koen in Boston refused Thursday to accept about 50 draft cards which four antiwar demonstrators tried to turn over to him. The protest drew about 200.

THE NEWS in Brief

NEW YORK (AP) — It was pelican roundup time at the Bronx Zoo Thursday and the doughty keepers donned their hip boots and readied rowboats for the fray.
Seven pelicans, obviously determined not to be corralled and sent to their winter quarters, skimmed in opposite directions over Lake Cope in the zoo.
The bird flapped but the boatmen paddled furiously and 2 1/2 hours later the last recalcitrant was safely stowed for transportation in the back of a station wagon.
"They used their half-wing, flip-flop offense this year," sighed Gordon Cyler, membership chairman of the New York Zoological Society. "We just weren't prepared for them."

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — City Council here will give Christmas presents in the form of paid electric bills for the month of December to its electric company customers.
It will cost the city-operated company an estimated $32,000, the council estimates.
Noting a $490,000 balance in the electricity fund, the council approved the gift, continuing a practice started here 20 years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — It was "follow the leader" crawled into a 15-inch culvert pipe Thursday and his 5-year-old master followed.
Dabo snaked through quickly but little James Anderson Cole III got stuck.
A playmate summoned help but it took firemen one and a half hours to free the tearful boy.
"He didn't get a scratch," the boy's father said. "And within half an hour he was laughing and playing again."

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Roy Booth was fishing before dawn in a Wichita Lake.
Suddenly a flock of wild geese flashed by. One brushed Booth's arm. Another banged into his fishing rod and line.
Away went the goose—line, rod, reel and all—but the weight of the gear dragged it back down into the water. Three times the goose struggled into the air, crash landed, and finally collapsed exhausted.
Booth cut the line and retrieved his rod and reel as the tired goose wobbled back to the lake.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Negro children from low-income families have a dialect of their own and should be taught English as if it were a foreign language, a linguistics expert says.

Dr. William A. Stewart told a group of Miami educators that school teachers must not mistake the dialect for simply incorrect English.

"We can sing 'We Shall Overcome' and build housing projects until we are blue in the face but we can't educate the culturally disadvantaged child by treating his dialect as sloppy English," Stewart said.

"We must teach him new skills without applying our value judgments to the way he behaves, just as we would teach him French, for example."

Victory Is Forecast For St. Louis Squad

Rangers Victim Of Division

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Even the New York Rangers have fallen victim to the surprising West Division of the National Hockey League.

The Rangers, unbeaten in four starts against the new expansion teams, were upended by the Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 in one of the two games on Thursday night's schedule.

In another interdivisional game, the Detroit Red Wings and Oakland Seals played a 1-1 tie.

The Flyers jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the opening period at Philadelphia on goals by defenseman Ed Van Impe and Leon Rochefort, the latter a former Ranger. New York cut the margin midway through the second period on Reg Fleming's marker, but Philadelphia got that one back later in the session when Ed Hoekstra beat Ed Giacomin, the Rangers' netminder.

Defenseman Rod Seiling scored New York's second goal in the fifth minute of the third period.

Each of the five other older established clubs in the East Division had previously been defeated by an expansion team.

In the game at Oakland, each team scored in the first period and played scoreless hockey the rest of the way. Alain Caron's tip-in on a power play gave Oakland a 1-0 lead at 3:44 of the opening period and slightly more than two minutes later Gary Jarrett provided the equalizer with a 20-footer.

Rookies Roy Edwards of the Wings and Gary Smith of the Seals displayed flawless goaltending from then on. Edwards finished with 18 saves while Smith turned aside 21 shots including a sizzler by Gordie Howe late in the second period.

The deadlock enabled Detroit to move into sole possession of second place in the East, one point behind pace-setting Toronto. Oakland now is tied for fifth with St. Louis in the expansion West Division.

Mahovich May Return Sooner

TORONTO (AP) — Frank Mahovich, star left winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs, may be back in National Hockey League action sooner than expected.

Dr. Hugh Smythe, club physician who has been treating Mahovich for acute depression and tension since he entered the hospital Nov. 2, revealed Thursday that his patient has been skating daily at a local figure skating club. The skating was recommended as therapy.

Six More Cities May Get Teams

TORONTO (AP) — The president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. said Thursday it will not be long before National Hockey League expansion takes in six more cities.

C. Stafford Smythe, speaking at the company's annual meeting, said: "We have back-up cities ready if someone fails. . . ." He did not elaborate.

KC May Field Eastern Squad

SEATTLE (AP) — There is a possibility Kansas City may field a team in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League next year, Dewey Soriano, PCL president, said Thursday.

Kansas City lost its American League entry when owner Charlie Finley took his franchise to Oakland last month.

Soriano said there have been preliminary discussions about the Washington Senators setting up a working agreement with the new Triple-A team.

Kansas City would replace Indianapolis, which is moving to the International League, Soriano said.

The possible changes came up at a meeting with Sandy Hadden, American League attorney who was here to look over the Seattle baseball situation.

Both Seattle and Kansas City are slated for American League membership in 1969, but they may meet a year earlier if the Midwesterners come to the PCL.

Pitt And Navy May Help Out

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — There'll be no Sugar for the Army football team on New Year's Day, but the classy Cadets won't find a Pentagon "No Bowl" edict too hard to swallow — if they can make Pitt and Navy their cup of tea.

Cadet hopes for an unprecedented postseason appearance were dashed Thursday when Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor decreed that no bowl bids would be accepted by the U.S. Military Academy.

"It was concluded that accepting an invitation to play in a postseason bowl game would tend to emphasize football to an extent not consistent with the basic mission of the Academy, which is to produce career Army officers," the Pentagon statement read.

Army, driving toward its best season wind-up in 18 years, reportedly had been in line for an invitation to the Sugar Bowl classic in New Orleans. Sugar Bowl officials had indicated strong interest in the Cadets, 7-1, should they get past Pitt Saturday.

While one Army bowl booster, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., was sharply critical of the decision, and vowed he would seek to have it changed, the Cadets themselves kept in step with the order from above.

Vocally disappointed Thursday morning when reports circulated that "people in high places" would reject an Army bowl appearance because of the Vietnam war, the Cadet Corps had regrouped by nightfall and were sighting their guns on Saturday's foe — and Navy.

BATTLE CRY!

It's 'Do or Die' for Old Alma Mater On Nation's Gridirons This Saturday

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
The Peerless Predictor

Egad, friends, this is the week old grads will be talking about for the next 12 months. The schedule is loaded with interstate and intrastate rivalries that always bring out the crowds and the best in the gladiators.

Getting together to settle their annual differences are such traditional foes as Southern California and UCLA, Tennessee and Mississippi, Texas and Texas Christian, Washington and Washington State, Missouri and Nebraska, Northwestern and Illinois, Oklahoma and Kansas, Oregon and Oregon State and Utah and Utah State.

These are the games in which past performances and season records mean nothing — it's "do or die" for Old Alma Mater and the devil take the hindmost — um-kumph!

Notwithstanding the obvious uncertainties inherent in such situations, The Hoople System has some gilt-edged predictions for you — kaff-kaff.

Employing the same secret Hoople mathematical progression which correctly forecast Penn State's stunning upset of North Carolina State last Saturday, I predict that of the nation's four major unbeaten elevens — UCLA (7-0-1), Indiana (8-0), North Texas St. (6-0-1) and Wyoming (9-0) — two will feel the lash of defeat.

Touchdown Bound

Watch for Southern California to bump UCLA in a real Hollywood-type cliff-hanger, 22-21, and for the power packed U. Texas-El Paso to outlast the Wyoming Cowboys in a free-scoring affair, 28-26 — hak-kaff!

Tennessee will move a step closer to the Southeastern throne by trouncing Ol Miss, 24-13. And North Texas State will retain its undefeated status by turning back Tulsa, 25-21, in Missouri Valley competition.

In the tight Big Ten race, Indiana will clinch a Rose Bowl berth by whipping Minnesota, 21-6, while its neighbor Purdue, also undefeated in the Big Ten but prohibited from going to the Rose Bowl two years in a row, will thrash Michigan State, 35-14 — har-rumph!

Successful Mules Seek Seventh Season Victory

Twelve Central Missouri State College seniors will be playing in their last college football game this Saturday afternoon when the Mules face the Harding College Bisons at Searcy, Ark. Game time has been rescheduled from 2:30 p.m. instead of a night game.

Seniors on the squad include: Ken Brumley, Bill Green, Carmine Argenziano, Phil Renzulli, Tom Carraway, Terry Santone, Charlie Williams, Bruce Black, Steve Witkowski, Mike St. Louis, Bob Folsom, and Emory Trawick.

Ten of the twelve seniors have been starters at one time or another this year. The remaining two have played backup rolls keeping pressure on the men in front of them for starting assignments.

Saturday's football game means more to these CMSC seniors and the rest of the Mules than just the last game of the season. A milestone will be reached if the Mules win their fifth straight game.

Also, a win for Howard Mahanes will boost his two year record to 11-8 and move him from 15th place among CMSC football coaches to a tie with William N. Grime ('20-23) and Tate C. Page ('48-51) for 5th place in all time wins. Mahanes' win-loss percentage then would be .579 — good enough for third place.

Big Defenses Collide As MU Meets Huskers

COLUMBIA, MO., Nov. 18 (Special) — Immovable Mizzou and impenetrable Nebraska slug it out here Saturday afternoon in a Big Eight football game that may leave some deep furrows in Memorial Stadium's turf.

The game should draw 55,000 spectators — as the two hard-bitten clubs shoot for a still-possible share of the league title and bowl consideration.

Nebraska rumbles into this 61st meeting between the two schools as the nation's most miserly dispenser of yardage. The Huskers are No. 1 in total defense — with a 51.4-yard rushing yield third-best nationally, and a 87.7-yard forward-passing ration to each foe.

The Tigers figure in the total defense charts — ranking third in the big picture on a dole of 170.6 yards per game.

Bob Devaney of Nebraska and the Tigers' Dan Devine — a couple of contemporary Michigan State assistant coaches who have enjoyed sparkling success in top jobs — will be involved in their sixth personal duel. Devaney's Cornhuskers won the last four decisions.

Last year's episode — a 35-0 drubbing on regional TV at Lincoln — is one rankling flashback that Mizzou veterans could carry into Saturday's scrap. The last two MU-NU games in Columbia, though, have been tensely-fought dramas.

Four years ago, the Scarlet invaders won out here, 13-12. The 1965 showdown, played to a record 57,206 crowd, featured Nebraska's comeback from a 14-0 disadvantage to a 16-14 triumph on Larry Wacholtz's clutch field goal late in the final quarter.

The out-of-town teams will stay at Holiday Inn for the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Appleton as host and greeters. Baker announced that the admission will be free and any donations at the gate will help defray expenses.

On paper, anyhow, the Missouri's defensive muscle — and fire-power on offense — appears to be a cut below the Nebraska variety. In backs Frank Patrick, Ben Gregory, Joe Orduna and Dick Davis, the Huskers display more front-line backfield brilliance. Led defensively by all-American Wayne Meylan at middle guard, they have shut out their last three opponents.

Mizzou's halfbacks generated a more diversified attack against K-State — and the Jon Stagers' breakaway threat is again present to supplement the inside-outside thrusts of Barry Lischner and Gary Kombrink. But the Bengals fall short — painfully short — in any comparison with the Nebraska passing game.

The Huskers are No. 2 in the Big Eight, averaging 137 aerial yards a game. Patrick is third on the individual tables with 998 yards by air. Missouri is last in passing at 46.5 yards a game.

Curt Jones, senior defensive tackle, is of questionable readiness Saturday, after spraining a knee — and his stand-in is Roger Boyd. Back for duty, though, is guard Carl Garber with the defense — so the Tigers are not severely short-handed up front.

Both teams carry a 6-2 overall record into the contest, and either probably would regard two touchdowns as sufficient points to win. Both have permitted 52 points — a 6½ point average — in eight games. The Bengals have not allowed a second-half touchdown all year.

Worn Cashmere Coat Can Look Like New

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. W. F. L. whose cashmere coat has worn across the tops of the pockets. I had the same trouble with a tweed coat. I purchased heavy black silk woven binding, double-fold, and bound the pockets all around. I also used this braid to edge the sleeves, go around the collar and down one side of the front.

I would also like to tell Linda that I use a worn-out percolator to hold paraffin to cover glasses of jelly. I removed the center part, and it is great for melting the paraffin and then pouring it on the jelly. As I open a glass of jelly, the paraffin is washed, rinsed and dropped into the percolator for the next jelly-making time.—M. E. K.

DEAR POLLY—I suggest that the lady with worn pockets on her cashmere coat buy velveteen the color she would like on it, cut the fabric on the bias and sew across the tops of the pockets, then replace the present buttons with velvet-covered ones so it will look like a new coat.—HAZEL

DEAR POLLY—I reap so many useful ideas from the column that I do hope this will help Mrs. W. F. L. restore her cashmere coat. Matching wool tape could be applied over the worn places, then added to the collar. Another suggestion is to sew the tops of the pockets shut and mend where necessary, then add new patch pockets made of matching fur fabric to cover the old ones.—M. M. H.

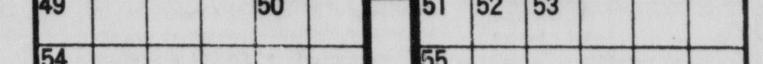

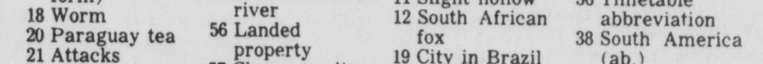

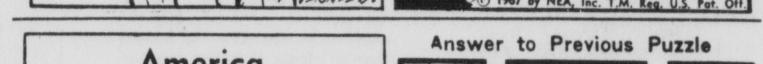

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am an eighth-grade student who carries her lunch to school in a paper bag. Sandwiches get very monotonous so I wonder if any of the readers have any suggestions for things that could be used in place of sandwiches for a cold lunch.—LYNNE

DEAR POLLY—My nine-year-old son and my husband made a rolling cart to carry garbage cans to and from the street. They removed the motor from an old power mower, bolted a piece of plywood on the top to make a platform and using the mower handle they can push three cans to the curb at one time. This can also be used as a mobile garbage can stand.—MRS. J. D. A.

DEAR READERS—I can imagine such a 'cart' also being used for transporting bags of leaves after they are raked up, bags of groceries from the car to the house, laundry basket from the house to the outside lines and so on.—POLLY

New Miss World

India's Reita Faria, Miss World 1966, places the coveted diadem that she has worn for one year on the head of her successor, Madeleine Hartog-Bel, of Peru, who won the title of Miss World 1967 in London Thursday. (UPI)

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A dear friend of mine had a horrible experience recently and I would like your opinion on what should be done about it. Emily (not her real name) noticed a lump in her breast. She went to a physician and was told to check into the hospital for surgery that evening. The operation was performed within 48 hours of the time she had seen the physician.

When Emily awoke from the anesthetic she learned that her breast had been removed. She went into a deep depression (which I understand is not unusual) but she began to cheer up on the fourth day. On the fifth day, however, it leaked out that the biopsy report on the breast which had been removed was negative. This made the poor woman so furious that she just about tore the hospital apart.

What can be done to prevent such catastrophes in the future? Don't suggest that Emily sue the doctor. Everyone knows the medical profession is such a tightly knit little group and it's ridiculous to try to fight them. I'd like your views. — CALIFORNIA YELL FOR HELP

Dear California: Like most second-hand reports your story contains some serious flaws.

No reputable physician removes a breast unless he first does a biopsy on the lump and finds a malignancy. This procedure is standard and virtually eliminates the possibility of removing a healthy breast.

Furthermore, all hospitals approved by the American Hospital Association now have tissue committees which examine a portion of all the organs which have been removed. Years ago a surgeon could remove just about anything and not have to answer to anyone. Today, he would not be allowed to operate if he had a record for taking out organs which showed no sign of disease.

So, don't believe everything you hear, Dearie.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If penalties for the possession of marijuana were removed from the law its use "would go right through the roof," Henry L. Giordano, federal narcotics commissioner has told congressmen.

"I hate to think what the problem might have been today if there had been no marijuana controls," Giordano told a House government operations subcommittee. "In today's ever-growing hedonistic society, it is obvious the results would have been disastrous."

He said marijuana is "definitely a dangerous drug with potentials for far-reaching damage to individuals and society."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency has told its recruiters in the New York, Boston, and Washington areas to shift their recruiting of college students from on-campus sites to nearby federal office buildings.

The reason: The CIA says it prefers to move its interviews off campus rather than risk touching off a demonstration that might embarrass a university.

The Justice Department has filed a proposed consent judgment forbidding the two largest national distributors of magazines, paperback books and childrens books to do business through a jointly-owned subsidiary. The judgment, filed in Newark, N.J., would take place in 30 days and end an antitrust suit brought in June 1965. The firms involved, Curtis Circulation Co. and Select Magazines Inc. allegedly control jointly National Magazine Service Inc.

The Pentagon has put out a call for 1,500 experienced teachers to help staff its 300 schools for the children of military men and civilian employees in 28 countries.

Hal Boyle's Column

Columnist's Job Like Digging Daily Graves

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "What is it really like to be a newspaper columnist?"

That is the question readers most frequently ask and, after only 24 years in the industry, the one I find hardest to answer.

It was best described, in my opinion, by the late Don Marquis, who was a columnist for many years before he repented and became a playwright. He said of his former occupation that it amounted to "digging a daily grave."

There do seem to be some public misconceptions of a columnist's pattern of existence.

For example, some people feel he is a person who dwells in a penthouse, rides to work in a chauffeur-driven limousine, and has a salary adequate for the ransom of 12 captive princes. He is supposed to have lunch with industrial tycoons, spend his afternoons giving confidential advice to world-renowned diplomats and his evenings running his fingers through the minds, if any, of beautiful movie stars.

Beloved friends and dear questioners, that ain't quite the way a normal red-blooded American newspaper columnist really lives.

He lives, as most people do, on the edge of his personal desperation. He has two big problems in life: (1) to find a new idea each day that will save him from mental bankruptcy, and (2) to earn enough money to provide bread for his children and milk to keep his ulcers quiet.

His biggest yearning in life is somehow to find a way to surprise his wife with a fur coat — made of any kind of fur — before she expires.

The next-most-often-asked question that makes a newspaper columnist sigh is this one:

"What do you do besides writing your column?"

The clear implication here is that it is somehow undignified or un-American for a man to do nothing but compose 500 words of prose a day. Monday through Friday. He is expected to have more than one arrow in his quiver.

Some columnists may do other things. Some moonlight by driving taxicabs over the weekend. Others try to achieve respectability by pretending they are writing a book.

The actual truth of the matter, however, is that a majority of columnists spend any spare time at their disposal in gnawing their fingernails or going to parties.

Several times a day a columnist gets by telegram or mail missives that begin:

"You are cordially invited to —"

"We'd be sincerely delighted to have your presence at —"

These invitations are for functions that run the full gamut from boredom to tedium.

In a single day it is possible for a columnist to be invited to the unveiling of a new tractor at the Waldorf, to gnaw cold salmon with a literary lion at the Plaza, or to act as a judge at the Americana in a contest to determine which secretary in Manhattan has the prettiest dimple on her left knee.

But a columnist's health is not measured by the number of cocktail parties he helps launch but by the number of such functions he has the strength to abstain from.

Most of the time he can have more fun just sitting there before an ominously silent typewriter, a vacant look on his face as he stares hopefully up at that same old familiar spot on the ceiling, wondering when the lightning will strike.

See you next Monday.

SIT-IN FOR SILENCE

HONOLULU (AP)—The University of Hawaii had a new kind of sit-in.

R. M. Worth, professor of public health, and his epidemiology class of 56 graduate students sat in the path of a bulldozer digging a drainage ditch.

The professor and the students were not protesting drainage ditches.

They simply were trying to have class—a near impossibility inside with the bulldozer in operation outside.

The professor gave the bulldozer operator a class schedule and 24 hours' notice that he'd move in the vehicle's path unless the machine was silenced when the students gathered.

The driver talked to the foreman but was told work had to continue to meet a contract deadline.

The students then carried their chairs "and we moved outside with a portable blackboard," Worth said.

"It's a two-hour course. At the end of the first hour we were assured the work would not continue so we moved back inside the building."

Japanese Television

Television is more popular in Japan than in any other nation in the world, with the exception of the United States. There is a television set for about one of every 16 persons in Japan; the ratio is about one of every three persons in the United States.

Skeleton of Steel

The steel ribs of the new Olin Conductors Plant on west Highway 50 began this week. The above photos show a closeup of one section currently being erected, while the other picture is an over-all view of the future plant. The building going up here is a pre-engineered design supplied by the Inland Steel Co. The structure will have aluminum siding with fiberglass insulation and a painted steel interior. Charles Fredrickson, plant manager, said, "Construction work is progressing satisfactorily." (Democrat-Capitol photo.)

Stage First Raids On Shipyard In Haiphong

Very Near Main Dock Of Vietnamese Port

SAIGON (AP) — Capitalizing on a brief break in monsoon clouds, U.S. Navy Skyhawks staged a first-time raid Thursday on Haiphong's Shipyard No. 2. It is a boat-building and repair yard only 1.7 miles from the city's main docks, which remain immune.

There was no immediate assessment of the damage at the shipyard, on the Tram Bac River a mile west of Haiphong's geographical center. Three similar yards, farther away, were bombed last month.

A U.S. spokesman said the strike among operations that followed up 110 missions over North Vietnam Wednesday—was carried out by pilots from the carrier Coral Sea.

The spokesman made no mention of any losses.

A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi declared two U.S. planes were shot down at Haiphong and three elsewhere over North Vietnam during the day and some pilots were captured.

Though the Pentagon in the last three months has authorized attacks on various North Vietnamese objectives that had long been off limits, American fliers remain under orders to steer clear of the Haiphong piers where Soviet and other ships unload war supplies.

Washington authorities consider the risk of hitting one of the foreign vessels outweighs any advantage that would stem from wrecking the docks.

Scattered ground operations developed across South Vietnam.

The Dak To area in the central highlands, the latest live front in the war, was reported relatively quiet. Officers said there were three minor clashes in the afternoon in which two Americans were wounded and one North Vietnamese was killed.

There was light mortar shelling of the air strip, where enemy bombardments wrought heavy damage Wednesday, but planes ferried in fresh supplies.

"By noon tomorrow we'll be back to where we were when we were hit," said Maj. Gen. William R. Peers of Stuart, Iowa, commander of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division.

The losses included 1,100 tons of ammunition and 60,000 gallons of fuel oil. Two C130 transport planes were destroyed and one damaged.

Asked about the over-all situation in the area, 270 miles north of Saigon, Peers said: "If the other side elects to stay, we'll stay. If he goes, we'll have nothing more to do up here."

Monitored radio exchanges indicated at least two of the five North Vietnamese regiments involved in battles there over the last two weeks were pulling back.

U.S. officials said 706 of the enemy had been killed. American losses were listed as 115 dead and 524 wounded.

Sewage Plant In Operation

Some Gear Still Not Installed

The South Sedalia Sewage Treatment plant went into a daytime schedule of operation Wednesday afternoon, according to City Engineer Robert Cunningham.

Cunningham said the plant is treating sewage only during the day-time hours because some automatic equipment is still awaited. An operator is currently required to handle equipment at the plant.

Raw sewage is presently going through the primary clarifier at the plant, then through the rock trickling filter and through the final clarifier.

From there it goes into the new lagoon, which adds the final touches of the processing operation to the sewage remaining. After that, the water passes into the Breakfast Branch.

Cunningham stressed that no raw sewage is being passed from the lagoon into Breakfast Branch, which flows into Flat Creek some distance east of the sewage plant.

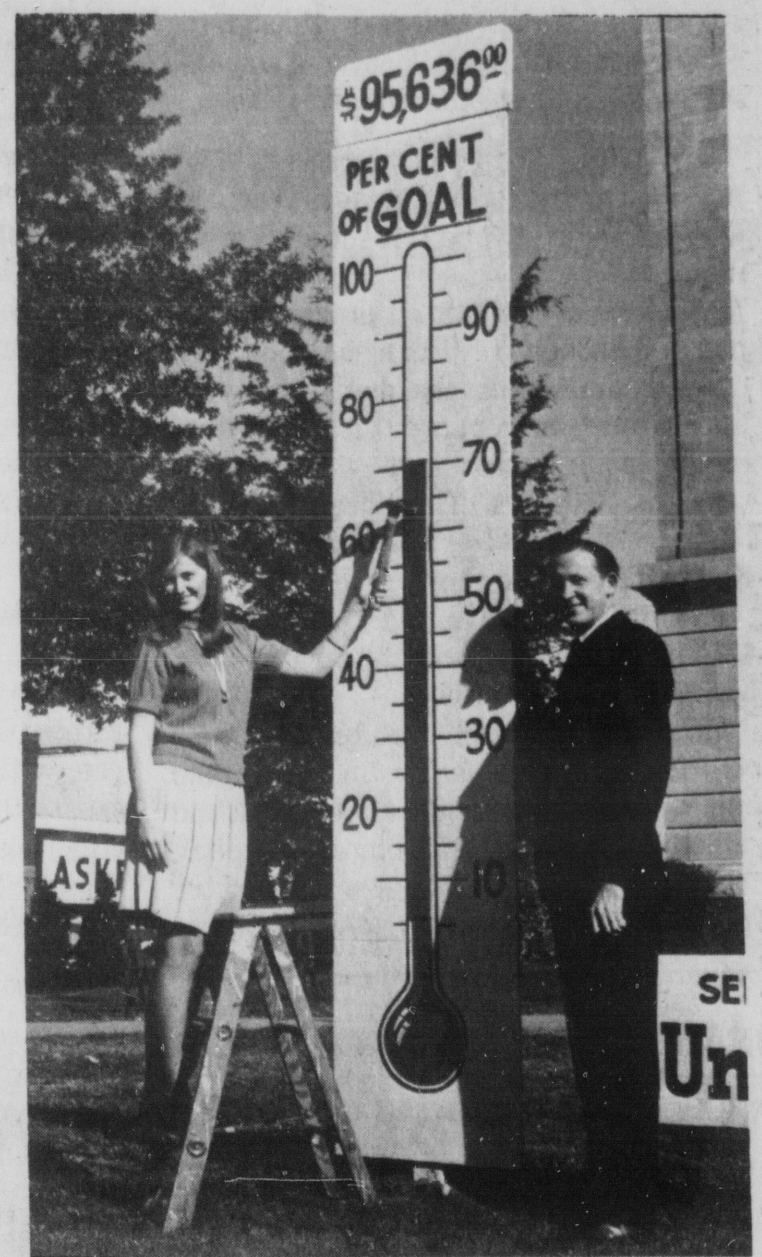

Water passing into the branch, Cunningham said, meets all requirements set by the Missouri Water Pollution Board.

The city engineer added that the plant will be placed on a 24-hour basis as soon as the needed equipment arrives. He said this would be sometime next month.

He said there has been a 92 per cent reduction in the oxygen demanded to stabilize all organic material in the effluent passing through the plant and into Breakfast Branch. This compares to 240 parts of oxygen per million parts of effluent before the plant went back into operation.

What this means, he said, is that no sewage is now being passed into public water ways.

Before the plant went back into operation, persons living in the Flat Creek and Breakfast Branch area lodged complaints that a health hazard was being created by the city because only partially-treated sewage was being passed to both streams.

Reach 70 Per Cent

The Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund thermometer has reached the 70 per cent mark, as indicated in this photo taken late Wednesday. Miss United Fund, Maggie Shoe, 1220 West Fourth, placed the ten-per-cent block on the thermometer as Jim Edwards, UF President, looks on. (Democrat-Capitol photo.)

Contributions Lag...

Although the Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund has reached 70 per cent of its goal, UF President Jim Edwards indicated today that some phases of the program are lagging.

Edwards pointed out that some businesses and some towns in the county have shown a marked increase over last year, but this has not been so in some small businesses and individual contributions.

In an appeal to these portions of the program that are lagging, Edwards said:

"The total in to date is $68,647.25.

"Seventy per cent is a long way from 100 per cent. The donations and pledges from industry and larger business firms have held up very well, and in most instances have shown a substantial gain.

"Our problem is in two areas. Small business and individual contributions, and the lack of follow-through by some workers to properly distribute and pick up their workers packets.

"We do not want to fail to make our goal in behalf of the 14 different organizations United Fund supports. Lets make Sedalia Pettis County proud, and meet this challenge. If you have not been contacted to give, why not mail your personal check to United Fund, 210 East 4th, Sedalia. Do not let your United Fund down."

Boost To Flat Creek, Kaysinger

The Kaysinger Bluff reservoir project received a $1.2 million boost above the original budget requested from Congress to make it one of the largest parts of the Public Works Appropriations Bill for Missouri flood control projects.

Final approval was also given to the President's budget for the Flat Creek area south of Sedalia. Congress made no increases or cuts in the amount requested in the budget.

The announcements came Thursday from Senators Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long. Both Senators said, "The appropriation was as much as could be expected" in view of budget demands of the Vietnam conflict.

The senators pointed out that the largest increase in Missouri was for Kaysinger Bluff. Congress approved an allocation of $10 million for the massive work project.

In all, the senators reported, the appropriations measure would provide $47,350,000 for Missouri flood control work, $2,730,000 above what had been requested in the budget recommendations presented by President Johnson.

Area Counties Are Recognized

Seventy-eight Missouri counties were given special recognition during the 53rd annual meeting of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation held in Jefferson City. These counties were recognized for reaching their membership quota. Thirty-three of the 78 counties exceeded their quota by 25 members or more and became members of the Quota Plus Club and received a Quota Plus plaque.

Among 33 counties listed over their quota are: Morgan, 30; Cooper, 27; Pettis, 25.

On Mid-East Question

Britain Suggests A Compromise To UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain submitted to the U.N. Security Council Thursday a compromise resolution it hoped would break the prolonged diplomatic deadlock on a settlement in the Middle East.

Lord Caradon, British U.N. ambassador, urged a prompt and unanimous council decision. The alternative to effective council action, he said, is "too terrible to contemplate."

"So great is the need," Caradon said, "and so great is the measure of agreement among us that I cannot believe we will fail."

The resolution provides for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict," a reference to the six-day

Arab-Israeli war in which Israel seized hundreds of square miles of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory.

It also affirms the need for the termination "of all claims or states of belligerency." The Arabs have maintained a state of belligerency against Israel since the Jewish nation came into being 19 years ago.

It further makes provision for a special U.N. representative to go to the Middle East "to promote agreement and assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and accepted settlement."

Caradon said the British draft was designed to "take full account of the essential interests of both sides as they have stated them" and also to provide the "best hope" for a successful mission by the special representative.

Egyptian and Israeli representatives, speaking after Caradon, made no direct comment on the resolution, but they restated their positions on a settlement.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad declared that Egypt was "absolutely firm" in its demand for complete Israeli withdrawal from all captured Arab territories.

"Under no circumstances will we compromise on this point," he said.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban reiterated that to his government "agreement on secure and recognized boundaries is absolutely essential."

He said Israel could not "return to the shattered armistice regime or the fragile demarcation lines."

It was understood that both Israel and Egypt were seeking instructions from home on the British initiative.

The British proposal is the third to be presented to the council for dealing with the Middle East crisis. Neither of the other two—one sponsored by India, Mali and Nigeria and the other by the United States—is acceptable to both the Arabs and the Israelis.

Why I Will Vote YES

George E. Wright

George E. Wright, 411 East 11th Street, an employee at Bing's Supermarket, No. 2, gives his views on the Rival Manufacturing Co. bonds to be voted on Nov. 21:

"To continue to grow, Sedalia needs to attract new families. One hundred and fifty new jobs will bring in additional people. We can keep Sedalia growing and provide jobs for our own people without having to pay taxes to do so.

"Every progressive Sedalia family should vote in favor of the bond issue Nov. 21 to help Rival Manufacturing Co. expand."

To Share Grants

Name 63 Entrants To Model Cities Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials named 63 cities Thursday for participation in the model-cities program, the central thrust of President Johnson's attack on urban ills.

The cities, involving 65 projects in 33 states and the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, will share in $11 million in initial planning grants. Amounts of the grants are to be announced in the near future.

The cities selected from 193 applicants for the experimental, "total attack" on single neighborhoods range in size from Pikeville, Ky., with 5,000 residents, to New York City, with 8 million.

Secretary Robert C. Weaver of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), who announced the selected cities, has said that the six-year program should provide the basis for a national effort to rebuild American cities rivaling the Marshall Plan for European recovery after World War II.

Cities not chosen for the first round of grants still may be selected for a second round, the terms of which are to be announced soon.

About $12 million is available for the second round, and sources said about the same number of additional cities will be chosen as on the first round.

Most noteworthy among major cities not chosen Thursday were Los Angeles and Cleveland, both scenes of racial rioting. Weaver said at a news conference that Los Angeles had not met the program criteria and that Cleveland had not submitted an impressive plan.

After a planning period of about one year, the cities announced Thursday will share in $312 million in funds for carrying out their programs.

But Weaver has explained that this amount will represent only a small part of the total investment—even the federal investment. All of the spending of federal, state and local governments is to be focused for the first time on single neighborhoods, and officials hope there will be a big private investment in the projects.

The chosen neighborhoods, including some of the most depressed and blighted eyesores of the American landscape, are to be turned into showpiece areas. The program will attack the deeply rooted problems of employment, housing, education, health and crime.

No Pickup...

There will be no garbage pickup in Sedalia Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, according to Vernon Ditton, superintendent of the Street and Alley Department.

Ditton said he has arranged for Thursday's routes to be covered Friday, the day following Thanksgiving.

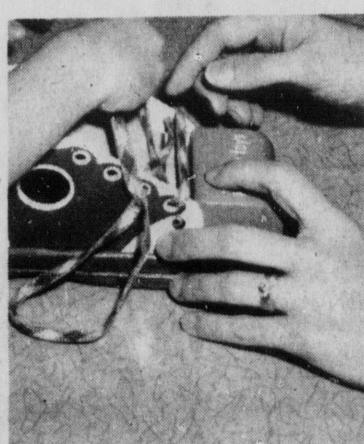

California Nursing Home

Plans for local residents to build a 60-bed extended care facility to be known as "Windsor Estates of California" have been completed for a planned beginning of construction early in 1968. The new facility will be built on a site near Proctor Park and completion is expected in the late summer. A $600,000 development, the facility will have a local board of directors and will be built in conjunction with Professional Nursing Homes of America, Inc., Kansas City. Ira J. Jackson, M.D., chairman of the board of PNHA, said

Windsor Estates will be fully Medicare approved and will care for persons of all ages who do not require extensive hospital care, yet are not able to return to normal living at home. He added that the California facility will maintain an "open staff" policy where a patient may be admitted by his personal physician and remain under his care. Windsor Estates of California will be part of a network of extended care facilities across the nation with an established and standardized operational procedure.

Hands To Learn...

Must Use Correct Address

Postmaster Maurice Hogan today urged Sedalians to be sure they use the correct address on their letters and packages going to servicemen overseas to avoid serious delays in delivery.

Hogan reported millions of letters and packages going overseas have been delayed because they were not properly addressed. He said one of the biggest problems has been the failure of persons to include the very important five digit APO or FPO number in the military address. Mail not containing this number is incorrectly addressed.

Last year more than nine million pieces of mail were delayed in delivery. Of this number, 3½ million pieces failed to include the complete five digit APO or FPO number in the address. This improperly addressed mail had to be sent to the military locator directory where time-consuming searches were made to determine the proper addresses.

"As Christmas mail volume going overseas is expected to increase up to 30 per cent or over four million pounds above last year, every precaution should be taken by friends and relatives of servicemen to address their letters and packages properly to assure rapid delivery to its destination," Hogan said.

There are four essential elements to an overseas military address. They are: The serviceman's identity-grade, full name, and service number. His military unit-complete. Gateway post office—New York, San Francisco, or Seattle. APO or FPO—a five digit number.

When any of these elements is missing the letter or package will be delayed in delivery. To assure delivery packages should now be sent by air mail, except those weighing five pounds or under. These will continue to receive air service on space available basis until Dec. 1.

Down the Home Stretch

Sedalia ought to raise $95,363.00 for the 14 participating agencies of the United Fund.

That's the opinion of those who are knowledgeable about the budget and allocation of funds each year although the established goal never is near enough to satisfy the requests for financial help.

The 1967 goal therefore was set $7,406 higher than that for the previous year. This doesn't seem to be too much of an increase.

The Sedalia campaign is progressing but not fast enough if we can judge by what other communities are doing this year. Cape Girardeau went over the top almost a month ago. It's goal was $95,400 almost the same as Sedalia's. This week Jefferson City passed its goal of $133,065. Of course Kansas City hit the gong.

Hannibal is attempting to raise only $73,297.30 this year and the final results, like Sedalia's, are elusive.

Encouraging news locally has been contributions from various industries and employees going over the $1,000 mark and rating illustration in the Democrat-Capital. This promotion has added a little more spirit to the campaigners some of whom have been lagging behind with solicitations and reports to UF headquarters.

But the turtle pace is not new to Sedalia. The calls, and call-backs, and call-backs by solicitors are as discouraging this year as in the past. Time also is of considerable importance to these people and it is a wonder they persist year after year volunteering to participate in the challenge to raise money for the purposes the United Fund was established years ago. But they do hit the pavement again and again.

A plea is made to those who have not yet contributed to do so at once. If a solicitor has not made contact, a person or group may communicate directly with United Fund headquarters, 210 East 4th Street, phone TA 6-2980.

Such voluntary cooperation will speed up the campaign which ought to be concluded not later than the end of this month.

Those solicitors who have delayed turning in their reports are also urged to get with it so Sedalia can report a satisfactory culmination of the campaign, either close to or over the top. The latter would be something of a miracle considering past performances. GHS

Whittler of Foreign Aid Excited

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Rep. Otto Passman of Monroe, La., is a dapper, likeable congressman who keeps 12 suits hanging in the closet of his congressional office, has more watches than any other member of Congress, and likes to spend April in Paris supposedly checking on our foreign aid spending, even though haughty President De Gaulle long ago banned American aid from France.

Rep. Passman keeps two Cadillacs in his garage, has brought back a brilliant assortment of jewelry from his junkets to Hong Kong at taxpayers' expense and prides himself on being the No. 1 whittler-down of foreign aid.

It was against this background that a hot argument took place behind the closed doors of the House Foreign Aid Appropriations sub-committee the other day. The public is entitled to know what happened. On one side was the whittling congressman from Louisiana; on the other, Chairman George Mahon of Texas—both Democrats.

Otto wanted to uphold his record as the No. 1 whittler. Mahon knew that the price of coffee had fallen in Brazil, the price of bananas had dropped in Ecuador, the price of tin had caved in in Bolivia, the price of copper had plummeted in Peru and Chile. He also knew that the West African countries which had kicked out pro-communist dictators were struggling with drastic price drops on these same commodities.

Finally, Mahon knew that pro-Chinese communists were attempting to stir up revolt in all of these countries; that Che Guevara, the Cuban revolutionist, had only recently been killed in Bolivia; and that some kind of financial aid was badly needed from the United States. Chairman Mahon therefore opposed the $2.2 billion foreign aid fund which the subcommittee was considering.

This amount was about $1 billion less than President Johnson had requested. However, Otto Passman had personally chopped down the money for the Peace Corps, for refugees, for the Inter-American Development Bank, and for individual foreign nations.

Despite the fact that Passman, as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, had actually and personally done the chopping, he pretended he hadn't.

"I know nothing about this bill," he declared excitedly behind closed doors. "The chairman (Mahon, of the Full Appropriations Committee) knows nothing about it. Nobody knows anything about it. It was handed down to us by the administration. I take no responsibility for it."

—Otto Gulps—

"What do you mean?" snapped Mahon. "You have to handle the bill on the floor. Are you for it or against it? Take a stand."

"All I want to say is that it's the best of a bad bargain," shot back Passman. "We have cut here and there, but it's still a colossal giveaway."

The House and Senate have already passed a $1.7 billion authorization bill, the lowest in history. But Otto was fighting a one-man battle to cut half a billion more from the appropriation bill below the figure authorized by both Houses of Congress.

As Passman began to harangue against various parts of his own appropriation bill, his voice rose to a high, emotional pitch, and at times committee colleagues could hardly understand what he was saying. Finally, Mahon broke in angrily:

"Listen, if you know nothing about the bill, as you say, and feel it is such a bad measure, maybe you should resign as chairman of the subcommittee. Nobody asked you to be the subcommittee chairman."

This thrust quieted Passman down a little. He gulped once or twice, then replied stiffly: "The chairman took me too seriously. I have no intention of resigning as chairman of the subcommittee."

There was another flareup when Rep. Thomas Morris, D-N.M., commented: "After listening to you, too, I'm more confused than ever. I think I'll vote against the bill on the floor."

Rep. George Andrews, D-Ala., also confessed that Passman left him confused. Rep. Elford Cederberg, R-Mich., finally demanded: "Otto, are you yourself going to vote for or against the bill on the House Floor?"

"In answer to your question," replied the excited Passman, "I might say that I've never voted for a foreign aid authorization (a preliminary measure reported by the House Foreign Affairs Committee), but, yes, I intend to vote for this appropriation, bad as it is."

"Well, you ought to know," snapped Mahon. "You drafted it."

When and if pro-communist revolutions break out in Latin America and Africa, Otto Passman will undoubtedly disclaim any responsibility whatsoever.

up, the larvae dry out, and sun beats down and they virtually roast. But when it rains they revive and wriggle. A Bristol zoology professor immersed some in near-absolute-zero liquid helium, kept others dried out for from four to ten years. When water was added they too revived, became midges.

Which suggests that it would not be so fantastic to discover primitive forms of life in the cloud areas of torrid Venus, or on some distant sphere where the only breathable atmosphere is ammonia gas!

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: Paint Removing.—Northwestern university has incurred an unwelcome and unexpected expense of about $5,000 — the cost of removing "peace" slogans and symbols sprayed on university buildings. The disfigurement coincided with the Washington demonstration against the war in Viet Nam.

The university should make every effort to discover who was responsible for this vandalism. If the painting was done by students, their suspension or expulsion should be seriously considered, with decision depending perhaps on their willingness to remove their own paint and make restitution for damage done. There are laws providing penalties for vandalism which could be invoked against either students or nonstudents. A failure to prosecute merely invites repetition of such offenses.

Persuasion should supplement pressure. Anyone who considers painting slogans on others' property should stop himself before he begins. Vandalism is not only wrong and illegal, but also an ineffective way to influence public opinion. Recourse to vandalism discredits the cause for which it presumably is used. If the people who painted "End the War" on Northwestern university buildings want to win others to their cause, they should learn that the paint spray can is not an acceptable instrument in argument. That is true for all sides of any issue.

Everyone Else Out of Step, Student Militants Imply

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

With militant students storming into college presidents' offices, immobilizing military and industrial recruiters and shouting down visiting speakers they dislike, it might seem they are exercising a certain amount of power.

Force, not power, is the proper word. Obstruction, even if it does not involve physical contact, is a kind of force. Unauthorized invasion of space—office, corridor or whatever—is the same.

While they deceive themselves that this is not so, the young militants talk excitedly about gaining "student power."

They obviously have sufficient numbers in many places to make themselves heard and felt. What is it they want power for?

On the broad scene, militants want to stop the war in Vietnam. Their favored method—a complete withdrawal of U.S. armed forces.

Many have pursued this goal for two years or more. They have made no headway at all. Votes like San Francisco's 2 to 1 balloting against withdrawal offer them little encouragement.

They do not, in fact, have the "power" to do anything about it. As this has been increasingly borne in upon them, the student militants (not to mention sizable numbers of sympathizing adults) have become frustrated, angry, gripped by a sense of impotence.

Thus thwarted, they have turned, with surprising speed, to techniques of opposition which grade from shout-down dissent to outright violence. Confrontation and resistance are the new words in their lexicon.

The young militants are on record with countless utterances indicating the only "debate" they care about is argument which they win. Again and again, they have emerged disgustedly from discussions with a defender of U.S. policy and said:

"We didn't get through to him."

The arrogant core of this comment is the automatic assumption that proper communication with the man would have brought his total capitulation to their viewpoint.

This attitude, expressed less and less now in discussion and more and more in obstructionist tactic, is a kind of junior totalitarianism which makes some of its more aggressive practitioners resemble frighteningly Hitler's young bully boys of 30 years ago.

The student militants spend so much of their time in the role of angry rebels against American policy that it is perhaps a bit surprising that they still find moments to contend they should have "power" within the university apparatus itself.

These claims are not exactly unrelated to their broader endeavors. They seem to want a bigger voice in university affairs to a large extent so they can use the schools as base and sanctuary for their assaults on the war and the government "establishment."

Consumed by emotional furies, the militant college minority appears to be demanding freedom to attack anything it chooses while insisting on immunity from any requirement of self-control, reasonable standard, fair play.

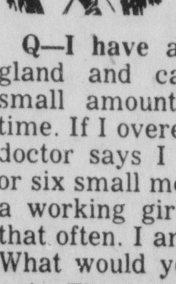

The observer can only wonder, too, where—in their brief years on earth—they acquired the expertise that qualifies them either to run or have a large hand in university affairs whose management is often supremely technical, complex and subtle.

Proudly they style themselves "impatient." But impatience is a destroyer of freedom if it sanctions using any means to an end.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Pyloric Obstruction Possibly Nervous Spasm

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—I have a small pyloric gland and can eat only a small amount of food at a time. If I overeat, I vomit. My doctor says I should eat five or six small meals a day. I am a working girl and can't eat that often. I am losing weight. What would you advise?

A—The pylorus is not a gland. Rather, it is the outlet of the stomach which consists of a thick muscular layer to regulate the passage of food into the duodenum. There are many causes of pyloric obstruction. Nervous spasm of various types of scar tissue due to a peptic ulcer or an operation in that region are the commonest causes.

If a high-calory liquid diet, which you could take to work in a vacuum bottle and dole out in small portions, and antispasmodic drugs don't help, an operation may be necessary.

Q—I have had alcoholic gastritis, but have not taken a drink in over a year. I feel fine now and wonder whether a few drinks would bring the gastritis back.

A—Although an occasional weak alcoholic drink might not cause a recurrence of your gastritis, there is great danger that one such drink would lead to another. The safest course for anyone who has had alcoholic gastritis is to abstain from all alcoholic beverages and continue to feel fine.

Q—In a recent column you stated that smog reduces the oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood. How does it do this? How can this decreased capacity be determined?

A—Carbon monoxide and other pollutants in the air form a more stable compound with the oxygen-carrying hemoglobin of your blood than does oxygen. If your hemoglobin is tied up with these compounds it cannot carry its full quota of oxygen. There are chemical tests for the oxygen-carrying capacity of the blood that can be performed in a clinical laboratory.

Marshall Miles has written a new book called "Marshall Miles Teaches Logical Bridge." In this book he teaches a very intelligent couple how to play good bridge. They start by knowing nothing about the game but they learn fast. Here is how he teaches one of the most important defensive signals.

He says, "West opens the queen of spades. South wins with the king and leads the ten of diamonds. How must East defend?"

The answer is, "He has to win the second diamond. Otherwise South can win two spades, one heart, two diamonds and four clubs."

He asks, "Doesn't East take a chance if he wins the second diamond? Suppose South has the last missing diamond?"

"I suppose there is some way for West to show that he started with three diamonds. Is there?"

"Yes," says Marshall. "There is a general defensive convention that a defender should show an odd or even number of cards in a suit by playing high-low (echoing) with an even number and low-high with an odd number. He doesn't do this all the time but only when it is more important to inform his partner than his opponent."

"I see," replies the student. "West plays the deuce of diamonds first and when he follows to the second diamond, East knows that West started with three diamonds. If West started with two diamonds he would play high-low, and East would duck the second diamond as well as the first."

Note that if South had held one less spade and one more diamond, the defense would be helpless anyway because South could take the two diamonds and go after clubs; but if South held three diamonds and only four clubs the double duck would beat him.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Wyoming was the first state to grant full woman suffrage. The World Almanac says that at the first territorial legislature, held in 1869, women of Wyoming were given the right to vote at all elections. This right was confirmed in the state constitution drawn up in 1889 and became effective in national elections when Wyoming became a state in 1890.

Johnson Armor Shows No Dents

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anti-Vietnam war critics and demonstrators annoy President Johnson but they don't put a dent in him.

Their hopes for peace face a bleak future at least until the 1968 elections, unless somehow the war ends before then. Nothing of the kind is in sight.

Recent and not so recent statements by Johnson and top men around him in fighting this war show grim determination to keep on fighting it.

For instance, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, looking beyond Vietnam, said months ago this country would be involved in Asia until the end of the century.

Last May in Look magazine he said the American interest "in the Far Pacific is precisely what our interest was in the late '40's and '50's in Europe."

In the same issue of the magazine Secretary of State Dean Rusk predicted it will be "useful for some time to come for American power to be able to control every wave of the Pacific, if necessary."

And this week Johnson showed his unending determination to go on with the war.

The Machinist, a labor magazine, quoted him as saying: "I may wind up with a poll of one per cent before it's over with."

Recent public opinion polls showed his popularity, and public confidence in him at a new low.

He said, "We can't end it (the war) with honor by surrender. We can't end it with honor by negotiations because the enemy will not negotiate with us." Until there are negotiations, he said, "It is going to be tough but we are just going to have to stand up and take it."

At a White House dinner Tuesday night, Johnson illustrated his will to go on by quoting from President Abraham Lincoln in the depths of the Civil War: "Let us ... dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Nor is there any softening in the administration's position about continuing the bombing of North Vietnam.

In the past year Johnson and Rusk have said repeatedly that despite previous pauses in the air raids the United States cannot now "stop half the war."

Their condition for halting the bombing is, and has been, some reciprocal action by North Vietnam to scale down its own military operations.

This week Johnson is meeting with U.S. military and political chiefs stationed in Vietnam. They have advised against any extension of the bombing pause which this country may permit for the upcoming Vietnamese holidays of Christmas and New Year.

One of them, Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Vietnam, gave Johnson a rather optimistic report on progress there but warned the road ahead is tough and long.

And Wednesday, when he arrived here by plane from Saigon, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, talked of progress in the war as "very encouraging ... I have never been more encouraged in my four years in Vietnam."

He also opposed any extended bombing pause, which is in keeping with his relentless attitude toward the conflict in Vietnam.

When he was here last April he told Congress the only strategy that could defeat the enemy was "one of unrelenting but discriminating military action and political and psychological pressure" on the enemy's whole structure at all levels.

While the critics may get under Johnson's skin—there's no doubt they do, since he's banged at them repeatedly—they have had no visible effect on him except to make him feel, judging from what he has said, that if they'd just shut up peace might come faster since obvious American disunity encourages Hanoi to keep the war going.

The Sickly Health Dept.

We all know about Billy Churchill and his sidewalk popsicle stand in Satellite Beach, Fla.

We know that someone complained that 11-year-old Billy was operating without a permit and that the county health department closed him up.

To emphasize the extent of his lawlessness, the health authorities pointed out that Billy didn't even provide separate toilet facilities for his men and lady customers.

Well, the governor of Florida didn't miff this one. He rushed in with cameras clicking and personally put the stand back in business with a ribbon-cutting ceremony, plugs for Florida fair play and free enterprise everywhere, and even a rap at LBJ.

All of which was good, clean refreshment stand fun for everyone except the county health department, which came out looking a little sick.

After all, to be really healthy, you can't be too stuffed up.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: Instant Insects.—The Royal Society in Britain has been delving into the extreme and weird conditions in which animal life will persistently, stubbornly exist on earth. When it is noted how the life spark survives in the most hostile environments, it's not difficult to assume that some forms of life may thrive on strange and forbidding planets within and beyond the solar system.

For instance, British savants have found bacteria surviving though exposed to withering radiation in ponds where the run-down fuel elements of nuclear reactors are cooled.

Then there are what have been termed the "instant insects"; you just add water. These are midge larvae, a quarter of an inch long, which inhabit shallow rock pools in Africa. The pools dry

Vinegar-Water Solution
Removes Offensive Odors
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Tell Christine to try washing her day bed cover that smells of kerosene in strong vinegar water. Hang outdoors to let the odors evaporate. My husband cannot stand the fish odor on his hands after he goes fishing, so he always uses vinegar, and I use vinegar in the rinse water to get the fish smell out of blue jeans.—MRS. L. C.

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Christine to set a bowl filled with ammonia under her day bed that smells of kerosene. Our dog ran through some wet weeds and came home with a skunk smell in her long hair. She ran in and jumped on the davenport. The smell was horrible. I washed the cushions as best I could and placed ammonia underneath the davenport, and it helped. Be sure there are no children around to get into the ammonia.—M. H. C.

DEAR POLLY—I was putting up some shelves and did not have a level, so I filled a glass measuring cup half-full of water. I set this on my shelf and could level it perfectly. I find an easy and economical way to make windows shine is to wash them with a mild solution of dish detergent and water, then dry with newspaper.—MARY of the allies were killed in action last week, while enemy dead totaled 1,802.

DEAR POLLY—My 11-year-old sister is a nuisance as she talks very loud and acts silly every time someone comes around. She makes my friends very uncomfortable. When I get on the phone, she yells into the mouthpiece, cuts me off from my party and talk so loud I cannot hear myself think. What can I do about her? She is not ignorant as she makes good grades at school but something is wrong. How can I reform her? —MISS C. R. B.

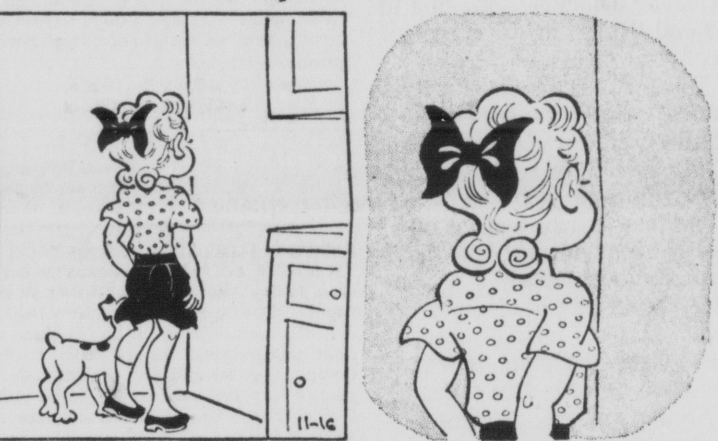

Where is your mother when these plays for attention are taking place?—POLLY.

American casualties remained at about the same level as a week earlier. The U.S. Command listed 177 U.S. personnel killed, 761 wounded and 28 missing or captured.

Unofficial tabulations showed that, from 1961 to last Saturday midnight, 14,621 Americans have been killed and 91,971 wounded in combat. Of the wounded, the U.S. Command said, 43,406 did not require hospitalization.

South Vietnamese casualties were put at 279 killed, 810 wounded and 91 missing. The other allies, among them South Koreans heavily engaged, lost 57 men killed and 103 wounded.

U.S. military rolls in Vietnam rose to 470,000 men, only 2,800 less than the peak American strength in the Korean War in 1953. Arrivals since Saturday may have brought the total above that level. The goal is 525,000 by next June.

Among other developments:—Premier Nguyen Van Loc reprieved three convicted Viet Cong terrorists who were to have been executed by a firing squad at a Saigon prison Friday.

The Viet Cong's clandestine radio had threatened reprisal. American officials were concerned that, for the third time in such cases in Saigon, the Communists might execute American prisoners.

—A Vietnamese-American development group that includes David E. Lilienthal presented President Nguyen Van Thieu plans for increasing South Vietnam's industry and improving its agriculture even while the war continues. Lilienthal, former chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and the Tennessee Valley Authority, heads the Americans in the development group.

Wheat Futures Advance

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat futures advanced nearly 1½ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, bringing to an end five straight sessions of declining prices.

The forward move of wheat futures, while generated in a relatively slow trade, influenced higher prices for soybeans and other grains.

The market had opened on a mostly irregular tone, but wheat displayed some early strength. After a spurt ahead of about 1½ cents, profit taking brought down prices to a point ½ cent or so above the previous close.

Around midsession, some brokers with export connections bought wheat futures and prices moved up again.

When grain trade closed, wheat was ¾ to 1½ of a cent a bushel higher, December 1.45¾-½; corn was ¼ lower to ½ higher, December 1.12½-¼; oats were ½ to ¾ higher, December 71½ cents; rye was ½ to 1 cent higher, December 1.16½; and soybeans were ¼ to ¾ higher, November 2.63½-64.
